ORIE WARRANT OUT IN POLITICAL FEUD

Today

H. R. H. Fine Salesman.
Kahn and Van Dyke.
Eric, the Robot.
Nice Week for Brokers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

WHEN the Prince of Wales, on his trip to Africa, climbs the big pyramid and drives a golf ball into space, that interests us. If he shoots an elephant, lion or one of the few remaining "rhinos" we shall be glad to hear of that. And if a tse-tse fly bit him, we'd all be sorry. Otherwise his travels over the big, hot, dark continent, do not interest us.

But the Prince's trip, an advertising, "pure business" undertaking, in behalf of the British Empire, is intensely important to every Briton, including many that do not know how important it is.

LIBERIA is trying to be independent. France has a valuable strip in the north, along the Mediterranean, and a big slice of the Sahara desert. Italy has some good African land and wants more.

But King George is really king of Africa, although his official title does not mention it.

Africa sends to England gold that props up sterling exchange. Africa sends diamonds, a practical world monopoly, and South Africa is a New Britain, with possibilities unlimited.

The Empire is fortunate in its royal young salesman, making himself popular everywhere, taking infinite pains to please African chiefs or United States captains of industry—they look much alike to H. R. H.

OTTO H. KAHN, of New York, is for Hoover, although he prefers Smith's attitude on prohibition.

"Prosperity has been more effectively promoted under Republican than under Democratic auspices."

Mr. Kahn ought to know about prosperity, having accumulated a good deal of it.

DR. HENRY VAN DYKE, brilliant speaker, author, educator and Presbyterian clergyman, will vote for Gov. Smith. Dr. Van Dyke recently denounced the injection of the religious issue into the campaign.

AN EXHIBITION in London introduces "Eric, the Robot," a man-shaped wooden and metallic machine that rises to its feet, stretches out an arm to command silence and makes a speech.

The shiny, metallic man-machine, its slanting yellow eyes lighted by electricity, frightens spectaters.

SOME workers will dread the possibilities of competition by machine men. But there is no danger.

When modern cloth-making machinery was first used England built forts to protect the machinery from enraged workers, convinced it would starve them.

Those machines employed more men than ever at better wages. Every efficient new machine increases prosperity, especially that of workers, by increasing man value.

With an ox team a man was worth $1 a day. With a locomotive he is worth $10.

A PLEASANT week for brokers and customers on the bull side last week. No wonder a stock exchange seat is worth close to $500,000, on its way to $1,000,000.

The week's total business was 22,840,391 shares, 100 different stocks selling at the year's highest prices. And "woe is me Alhama" is still the cry of the Bears.

Of course, the exchange must have Bears to steady things. But why BE one of them?

UNITED STATES TREASURY business on Saturday amounted to two billions of dollars, double the amount of our national debt, before the war.

The country has paid off two of the four Liberty loans. The amount is about eight billions, the amount still due on "Liberties" is $8,223,195,750.

War is an expensive luxury, especially when you get into somebody else's war.

EVERY day in New York City 12,000 people pay the telephone company 5 cents for answering "What time is it?"

Nineteen thousand asked on the opening day of public schools.

There must be many unreliable clocks and watches, although modern manufacturing produces watches and clocks absolutely reliable. An opportunity there for more energetic advertising.

AND advertising is needed also, in the cotton textile industry.

Silk and rayon have been allowed to drive out cotton, with no apparent effort by cotton men to hold their own.

Merely cutting down wages, closing mills, discharging men, etc., is a poor substitute for energetic business advertising methods.

EDWARD C. STOKES, once governor of New Jersey, says that Gov. Smith, if elected, COULD change the prohibition law, no matter what anybody says.

He could "appoint Supreme Court justices whose opinions run with his mind." And those justices could make the Volstead law and the Eighteenth Amendment ineffective.

That opinion will stir up militant drys.

Husband Walked Off

MARCIE RUSSELL MUGRAGE

Marcie Russell Mugrage, 429 Semple street, told Judge J. R. Macfarlane in divorce court today how her 18-year-old husband walked out on her six months after their marriage. When 17, she married Roy Mugrage, Marietta machinist, at her East Liverpool (O.) home in the spring of 1921. In the fall, while she was ill in their Canton home, he wandered away. She has never heard from him. Desertion is her charge.

Fla. Resorts Battered

Associated Press.

Striking a destructive blow at the Palm Beaches last night after spreading death and devastation through Porto Rico and other islands of the West Indies, the tropical hurricane today was blowing across the Florida peninsula toward the Gulf of Mexico.

Wire communications were down or temporarily disrupted over the wide area along the Florida East coast and in the South central portion.

Reports of casualties and heavy property damage were received from Palm Beach and West Palm Beach via amateur radio operators who picked up messages which they said were signed by station 4AFC, a Palm Beach amateur.

REPORT TWO DEAD

One message, received at Jacksonville by Gifford Grange, licensed operator, stated that an undetermined number of persons had been injured and many homes wrecked.

Grange's message, he said, was signed "D. H. Conkling," which is the name of the publisher of the Palm Beach Post.

It stated the Red Cross had made a temporary hospital in the Pennsylvania Hotel, because the hospital there had been partially destroyed.

Another message stating that two persons had been killed and 50 injured was picked up by station 4BN, Tampa. The message also stated that many buildings in the business district of West Palm Beach were damaged.

Meanwhile relief parties proceeded into the area from Miami, but nothing of what conditions they found there had come to the outside world because the section was without wire communications.

Senator Joe Robinson, Democratic nominee for Vice President, was in Miami for a speaking engagement today, but was prepared to cancel the address and hasten to the storm area if necessary.

Red Cross units were mobilized and ready at several other points for service in the area should survey of the district now being made demand aid.

WEST COAST WAITS

Reports from the west coast of Florida, where the weather bureau said the storm was headed said that no serious wind conditions prevailed early this afternoon. There were reports of minor damage from some central Florida cities and these advices said the citrus crop had suffered in some sections.

The weather bureau said that Titusville, 90 miles north of Fort Pierce, had reported hurricane winds from the east with the barometer at 29.24, the disturbance was described still "a severe storm."

Estimates of damage were impossible.

HALT ROMA HOP TO FIX TANK

By JAMES J. DELANEY.
International News Service.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Sept. 17.—All hope that the Maine-to-Rome flight of the sesquiplane Roma would start today was abandoned this afternoon when the propeller of the giant Bellanca plane was found to be out of "true" and a leak was discovered in one of her gas tanks.

If the propeller can be adjusted in time the start of the 4,600-mile flight will be made from the sands here tomorrw. The gas tank leak, near the dump valve, can be repaired in a few minutes, but Frank Stayshack, Pratt-Whitney motor expert, was not certain, but what at a new propeller would have to be hung on the Romo's drive shaft.

POLITICAL FEUDISTS STRIKE BACK

The political turmoil accompanying Mayor Kline's campaign to succeed none other than Mayor Kline gained fervor today, when it was learned that a warrant was at large for the arrest of Magistrate John W. Orie, a Kline appointee.

The warrant was said to have been issued by John J. Verona, who still will be Third Ward Republican chairman and Hill District alderman if the mayor fires him as Center avenue police magistrate.

The warrant was regarded as the latest thrust of the alliance which apparently has been effected between the forces of Verona and Owen J. McManus, rebellious Second Ward chairman. It follows wholesale arrests of police officials and constables by each other Saturday when the cry seemed to be, "Officer, call a cop!"

BURKE COMPLAINANT

The gossip was that Orie was charged with surety of the peace by Jack Burke, a gentleman of the "Strip," who was also named as complainant in several other arrests. Burke was before Magistrate Orie recently because, it appeared, he was guiding an auto which contained more than one-half of one per cent. He was held for court.

The excitement began Saturday night when two Verona constables strode into Center avenue police station with a warrant for the arrest of Inspector James J. Hoey, the same officer who has been warring on houses of ill repute in the Third Ward. The warrant charged something or other, apparently of great secrecy. Hoey outsmarted the constables—Mario Christofero and Louis Antonette—by locking himself in his own jail, and, to complete the victory, called city detectives, who arrested the constables on disorderly conduct charges.

SHUN HEARING

Christofero and Antonette failed to appear before Orie for hearing today, and forfeited $30 each.

The Verona forces carried on by sending Constable Harry Fink, accompanied by several deputy sheriffs, to Central police station with a warrant for the arrest of Lieut. John Schnurr. Schnurr spent Saturday night in jail and was finally released on bond. Fink and company then moved to the Strip with a warrant for Inspector Joe Elsner, who was not "at home" to the guests.

Nobody seemed willing to reveal on what information the charges were based, the popular or unpopular impression being that Hoey and Schnurr were accused of assault and battery by Jack Burke, also known as John Burkowski. The case against Elsner was filed, so they say, by Owen McManus, and says something about surety of the peace.

Bulletins From Fla., Lashed by Hurricane

TAMPA, FLA., SEPT. 17.—(AP.)—A WIRELESS DISPATCH FROM WEST PALM BEACH, PICKED UP BY STATION 4BN HERE SAYS TWO PERSONS WERE KILLED AND 50 INJURED AS A RESULT OF THE WEST INDIAN STORM THAT ISOLATED THAT VICINITY LAST NIGHT. THE MESSAGE WAS RECEIVED FROM STATION 4AFC AND WAS SIGNED "CRIMATH."

IT ADDED THAT AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT FROM BOYNTON, SOUTH OF THERE, SAID 40 PERSONS WERE BURIED IN A SCHOOL BUILDING WHICH COLLAPSED. ANOTHER REPORT FROM DEERVILLE SAID SEVERAL NEGROES WERE DEAD.

MANY BUILDINGS IN THE BUSINESS DISTRICT OF WEST PALM BEACH WERE DAMAGED, THE MESSAGE ADDED.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—American steamers in the hurricane's path, reports today indicated, safely outrode the tempest; with one exception, all have reached port or are proceeding on their courses.

The freighter Carolyn, under charter to the Grace Line, was the only steamer unreported. No fear was felt for the ship, however, as she was scheduled to reach Colombia tomorrow or Wednesday and was believed to have missed the storm.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—REPORTS OF THE DEATH OF TWO PERSONS AT FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA., AND UNCONFIRMED REPORTS OF OTHER LOSS OF LIFE WERE RECEIVED TODAY BY THE NAVY DEPARTMENT FROM THE KEY WEST NAVAL RADIO STATION. THE COMMUNICATION SAID THAT NO WIRES OR RAILROADS WERE OPERATING NORTH OUT OF MIAMI.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The naval radio station at Key West advised the Navy Department today that it had intercepted a radio message from Tampa, Fla., at 6:20 o'clock that the barometer reading was 29.38 and was falling. The wind was blowing in a northwesterly direction at 40 miles per hour.

ATLANTA, SEPT. 17.—(INS.)—INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE TODAY RECEIVED THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE FROM HORACE DUNN, ITS FORT MYERS, FLA., CORRESPONDENT OVER LOCAL AMATEUR RADIO STATION 4-RM, OPERATED BY FRED HOLLIDAY AND ROBERT HOLBROOK.

"NO DAMAGE IN FORT MYERS. WIRES DOWN NEAR TAMPA. GOT FRINGE OF STORM AND 50-MILE WIND AT 2 A. M."

THE AMATEUR OPERATORS REPORTED THEY HAD RECEIVED NO NEWS FROM WEST PALM BEACH.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Col. Vivian Collins, state adjutant general, today requested authority from Gov. John W. Martin to mobilize state troops to patrol the Palm Beach and Moorehaven hurricane area and assist in relief work. Gov. Martin indicated he would await more definite information before acting.

SOUTH FLORIDA

The Sun-Telegraph artist here helps you to visualize the South Florida area that today is embattled by one of the worst West Indian hurricanes ever to strike there. The storm, whirling around its vortex like a cyclone at the rate of 125 miles per hour and at declining speeds out to the edges of its great cylindrical sweep, is moving across the state at an average speed of about six miles per hour.

Find Bones Of 4

Workmen excavating for a new building at Lincoln and North Millvale avenues, Millvale, today came across the skeletons of four persons, believed to be those of three adults and a child.

Authorities began an investigation to determine if the four had been murdered.

Millvale's oldest citizen could remember no cemetery in the vicinity.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Pirates were on edge today as they prepared to meet John McGraw's Giants, in the second game of the series, here this afternoon. Needless to say, the victory of Fred Fussell and his mates yesterday, in which the Corsairs came out on top, 1 to 0, rather stunned local fans, inasmuch as it may have a far-reaching effect upon the pennant race, for if it accomplished any thing at all, it helped the struggling Cardinals, who have been hard-pressed by the Manhattan maulers and the Cubs.

Donie Bush and his crew would like to make it two in a row, and this afternoon Ervin Brame will go to the mound, likely opposed to Carl Hubbell, McGraw's southpaw ace.

Charley Hargreaves, Buc catcher, was a real Pirate casualty yesterday, when he "collided" with a pitched ball at the home plate during the practice session, but was expected to play this afternoon, nevertheless. He was dazed by the blow and was rushed to the Giant's physician, where an X-ray showed no bones were fractured.

Pitcher Glenn Spencer and First Baseman Willis Windle reached the club last night, from Columbia, and will remain until the end of the tour.

JAWORSKI DYING; NAB GIRL AIDE

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The search for John Vasbinder, confederate of Paul Jaworski, policeman-slayer who lies seriously wounded at City Hospital, resulted in the arrest of a pretty young woman yesterday.

The woman is the wife of a companion of Jaworski and information which the police gleaned from her indicated that the notorious "Flathead gang" of Pittsburgh, of which Jaworski was the leader, had been using Cleveland for a hide-out while playing its bandit activities in other cities.

FLEE AMID TURMOIL

Vasbinder was the man who was with Jaworski last Thursday when police surprised them in an East Side restaurant and captured the gang leader after he had killed Policeman Anthony Wiezcorek and barricaded himself in a private house. During the excitement Vasbinder escaped. Like his pal, he was wanted in Pittsburgh, where he was under sentence of death for murder.

The woman arrested yesterday said her husband left Cleveland last Thursday night to notify Jaworski's relatives in Detroit, but detectives were inclined to doubt this part of

HOOVER PA. LEAD UP

The lead of Herbert Hoover over Gov. Alfred E. Smith in the straw vote canvass of Pennsylvania conducted by The Sun-Telegraph today passes the 4,000 mark.

Strong support of Hoover in a large vote coming from rural counties was responsible for the gain. Smith was given a good lead in the day's returns from Scranton and Philadelphia.

What the straw vote indicates in Electoral College and returns by states on Page 1, Second Section.

The canvass, which is conducted as a part of the poll by the Hearst papers of the United States, has been extended to 10 additional counties in Pennsylvania.

Three of the counties, Erie, Luzerne and Schuylkill, are reported to be stirred by a wave of sentiment for Smith, and the recent

"THAT WAS MEDICINE"—ZIEGFELD

Florence Ziegfeld, "glorifier" of the American girl, is in town!

And—get a load of this—he's not a rum-runner! He says so, himself.

He told all about it yesterday. He began by telling about the modern girl. She has taken on a bit more weight, and is more lovely than ever, he said. She is about the same height, but has curves a trifle better defined than heretofore, and is—oh, my yes—much more intelligent.

ZIEGFELD

"But what about this other racket, Mr. Ziegfeld? Ar you a successful rum-runner?" he was asked.

"Who me? Never ran a rum, or a rummy, in my life!" came his reply.

"That's strange," the reporter opined. "News dispatches from Rouse's Point, N. Y., said you were find $5 each for something like 140 glorified bottles the other day when customs officials found liquor in your private car."

"Oh, that!" with a typical Ziegfeldian shrug of the shoulders. "That belonged to Dr. Jerome Wagner, an acquaintance of mine—see, here's the receipt. Dr. Wagner paid the fine."

Sure enough—there was the receipt. And what a sad story it told. Fifty quarts of this and 20 bottles of that, and what with this and that, it was mighty sad.

"Dr. Wagner pleaded for the liquor," Mr. Ziegfeld continued. "It was good liquor, the best in Canada—most of it 125 years old, he told those heartless customs officials, and begged them to allow him to keep it. His patients needed the best, and he couldn't get liquor like that in this country."

The plea of Dr. Wagner, so eloquently related by his acquaintance, Mr. Ziegfeld, was touching. The reporter's handkerchief got tangled up with notebook and pencil at this juncture and he almost missed what followed.

"Sure, I helped Dr. Wagner out—I told the customs men he was telling the truth. His patients needed it badly.

"Dr. Wagner has never had but one patient in his life," I told them, "and I'm it. Please won't you let him keep the nice liquor?"

"Pish-tosh!" replied the customs men, and Dr. Wagner paid the fine.

GREENSBURG WARS ON CROWDED AUTOS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 17—In an effort to break up reckless driving among high school students, police arrested four boys who were riding on the running board of a car on a local street. Police have announced a safe and sane driving campaign.

25 CENT BUS FARE HERE CLASSED AS "EXTORTION"

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Widespread interest has been shown in The Sun-Telegraph exposure of the exorbitant bus fares charged in this city. Public indignation has been aroused over the fact that the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is charging 25 cents for a service available in other cities for 10 cents.

Among the letters received from readers the following from Mrs. Helena M. Connolly was a special interest:

"I have read with great interest your article in Wednesday's Sun-Telegraph relative to the 25-cent bus fare which predominates in the city of Pittsburgh, and wish to commend you on this article. If there were more advocates of a lower bus fare probably the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company (subsidiary of the Pittsburgh Railways Company) would be compelled to lower its fare in order to induce heavier travel.

"Just the other day I stood waiting for a street car at Forbes street and Craft avenue. The hour was 8 a. m. and the cars

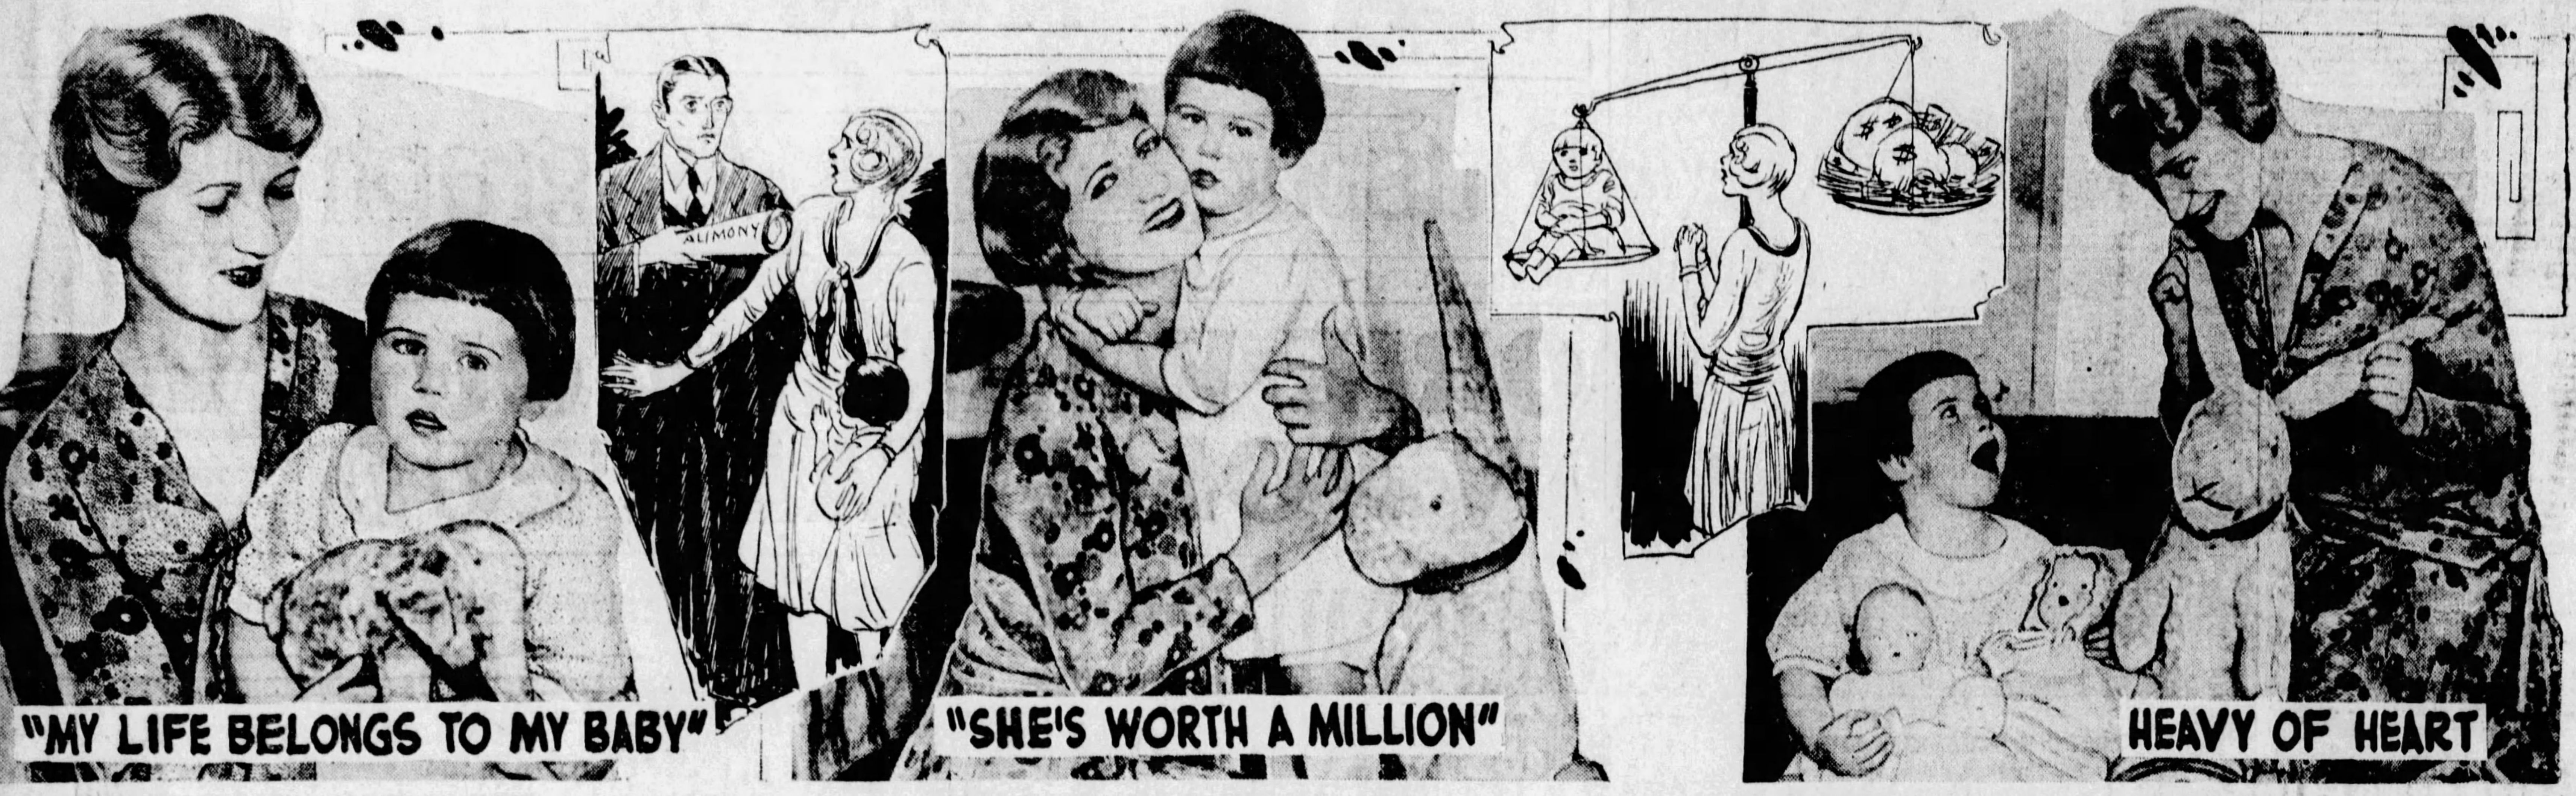
SMITH STARTS ON TOUR "TO WIN WEST"

Divorce Case Unsettled :-: Can a Father Buy His Child for $1,000,000? :-: Never Says This Mother



MRS. NAN SACHS AND ROSALIND

"My life belongs to my baby," says Mrs. Nan Sachs, New York, fervently, after she had rejected, with scorn, her husband's offer of additional alimony if she would give him custody of their child.

"A PEARL OF GREAT PRICE"

"I wouldn't give her up for a million dollars a week," she exclaimed. "What would my home—and my life—be without Rosalind's laughter and tears, and the patter of her baby feet? I'd rather die than lose her! Not all the world's riches could compensate me for the loss of Rosalind."

WHILE THE REST OF THE WORLD ROLLS BY

In their little apartment on Washington Heights, mother and daughter frolic gayly, even though Mrs. Sachs' heart is heavy. Anxiously she awaits the decision of Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel on the application of her husband, Abraham J. Sachs, wealthy manufacturer, for custody of the child.

SMITH OFF "TO WIN WEST"

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

ABOARD GOV. SMITH'S SPECIAL TRAIN, Sept. 17.—Gov. Al Smith headed westward today on the greatest political adventure of the campaign.

Upon his success or failure in the Rooseveltian task of "winning the West" may conceivably hinge the outcome of the presidential race.

With characteristic courage and audacity, the New York governor has set out to carry his fight into territory that if not inimical to his candidacy, at least is traditionally Republican.

The man in the brown derby from the sidewalks of New York is going to talk progressiveism to audiences in eight states.

He is going to outline a program of agricultural relief tomorrow night in Omaha, the heart of the grain belt. He is going further than the Republicans have yet been willing to go in meeting the demands of the farm organizations who fought so bitterly and so futiley for the McNary-Haugen bill. And thereafter, audiences in Oklahoma, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin, are going to hear from his lips his ideas and policies on water power development, transportation, the tariff, intolerance, foreign affairs, immigration, conservation and prohibition.

FIFTEENTH BOMB MARKS KENOSHA, WIS., STRIKE

KENOSHA, Wis., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Another bomb—the fifteenth since the commencement of labor troubles at the Allen A. Knitting Mills—destroyed a carload of grapes at the Luxem Wholesale Fruit Company warehouse last night.

Police believe the bomb, intended for someone else, was dropped by the dynamiters in flight or by mistake.

ANCIENT MARINER WINS SAILBOAT RACE AT 76

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 17.—Ralph Ellis is an ancient mariner who can show the way to young folks sailing a boat. He won a special 10-meter boat race of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. He is 76.

Guilty Plea Of Boy Killers

Pleading guilty to the murder of Edward Flynn, 63, night watchman at the Homeopathic Hospital, during an attempted holdup on September 4, 1927, four youths faced Judge James H. Gray in Criminal Court today and admitted, in addition to the slaying, between 18 and 20 other holdups. The youths are Michael Ferrero, 16, and Joseph Ferrero, 22, of 6615 Shetland avenue; Henry Constanza, 18, of 646 Chianti street, and Lloyd Moore, 19, an inmate of Morganza.

Arrest of the youths on the murder charge followed the confession of Michael Ferrero to Beech Andrews, home father at the Thorn Hill school for boys. Michael admitted firing the fatal shot, and implicated the others. Constanza, he charge, stabbed Flynn after the watchman had been shot down.

Judge Gray, after hearing character witnesses will pass sentence.

daily majorities of Hoover are expected to be cut as a result.

The standing in the Pennsylvania poll now is as follows: Hoover 16,667, including 11,531 men and 5,136 women; Smith 12,549, including 8,382 men and 4,167 women.

The voters heard from in the poll who voted in 1924 cast their ballots as follows: Coolidge 20,662, including 14,148 men and 6,514 women; Davis 2,506, including 1,941 men and 565 women; LaFollette 1,952.

STATE PATROLMAN HURT AS MOTORCYCLE CRASHES

UNIONTOWN, PA., Sept. 17.—Corporal A. C. Fasolas, in charge of the Uniontown detail of state highway policemen, drove his motorcycle into the side of an embankment to avoid a collision with an automobile last night near Point Marion. He sustained a fractured collarbone and other injuries. He was chasing one machine when another loomed before him.

TYRRELL'S PASTOR PLEADS FOR UNITY

A handful of devout worshippers—remnants of the Rev. J. D. Water's flock in the First Christian Church of Munhall, where the spilling of blood marred Mother's Day services last May—pledged themselves to the reconstruction of the church at home-coming services yesterday, 24 hours after a jury sealed the fate of F. J. Tyrrell, Sunday School superintendent, who patted a child's head, then killed a man.

The tragedy, still fresh in the minds of many, was not mentioned directly, neither were either of the principals in the grim drama enacted so unexpectedly on that Sunday morning but three months ago. Hardly a person—man, woman or child—could aught but think of it, however.

DEATH SPOT SHUNNED

The corner where Phillip Clark stood and raised his hand in accusation against the lawyer-Sunday school superintendent is shunned. Clark only raised his hand and voice, but Tyrrell said he saw something glitter in his accuser's hand. The Sunday school superintendent flashed a gun and a stream of bullets forever silenced the man who faced him.

That spot, will remain a terrifying memory in the minds of many who kneel on a new carpet unsoiled by the stain of a murder victim's life blood.

There were new faces among yesterday's congregation—there were several visiting pastors. The state secretary of Christian churches in Pennsylvania occupied the pulpit. Mr. Waters conducted the services.

"We take our text this morning from the fourth chapter of Micah," the Rev. H. A. Denton, state secretary, said from the pulpit.

"The House of the Lord shall be established on the top of a mountain—Get up nearer to God," he proclaimed.

It was an appeal to the congregation to stand together and lift up their church. The full significance of the admonition was not grasped immediately, but as the minister pounded the thought home to his listeners, they seemed to realize what was needed.

They hung on the preacher's words as he told them of the tower of Babel, using it as a symbol of hardship and privation necessary to build up their tottering house of worship. He recalled al King Solomon's temple and charged it had been built on a mountain top to be seen and to be closer to God.

"Lift up your church!" he exhorted.

With this command still ringing in their ears, the 100 or more worshippers filed quietly out of the pews to the pulpit where their pastor and secretary received their pledges of reconsecration.

"It is sad," declared Mr. Waters after the services, "that some of our congregation have left us. None have resigned, but you know how this terrible thing has upset everything.

"We were going along so nicely, too, when this happened, but we are more determined than ever to build up the church and bring all of our people closer to our God."

Thomas F. Thompson, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, has taken charge since the tragedy.

"We have not asked Mr. Tyrrell for his resignation," he said, "but intend to go along as we are until the first of the year when the church board undoubtedly will elect a new superintendent.

"Our Sunday school has suffered, of course, but we hope things will be different before long. We had more than 100 children in attendance this morning," he concluded.

JAWORSKI IS DYING

her story, believing that her husband had left town to escape arrest.

The woman admitted that Jaworski and his brother Sam had lived with her husband and herself in Detroit for a time before the gang came to Cleveland. While there, Sam and her husband were arrested in connection with the robbery of the Detroit News last spring but later were released, she said.

Arrest of the woman was brought about by an automobile bill of sale, bearing her husband's name, which was found in a Lakewood apartment where Paul Jaworski made his hangout.

WIFE FLEES CITY

Information gathered by police is that Paul Jaworski and his wife and another man lived here together. The third man was at first believed to be Vasbinder, but descriptions given of him by neighbors do not tally with that of the escaped killer. A thorough search satisfied the police that Jaworski's wife and the other man fled the city after the capture of the bandit leader.

Although he lies in a dying condition at City Hospital, Jaworski has been indicted and arraigned for the killing of Policeman Weizcorek and his trial has been set for October 22. But physicians at the hospital say he will never be tried.

He has been given from four to six more days to live. It has been found that one of the shotgun slugs from a police pump gun had cracked the base of the bandit's skull, allowing a seepage of spinal fluid that probably will prove fatal, the physicians said.

Safety Director Edwin D. Barry and Police Chief Jacob Graul visited the gunman yesterday and told him he was going to die.

"He says he doesn't care," the officials later remarked.

The purpose of the visit, they revealed, was to seek the truth from Jaworski as to whether or not the man who was with him last Thursday was John Vasbinder.

They said Jaworski kept repeating "no, it wasn't Vas." The companion was a man whom he knew only by the name of "John," the officials said he told them.

Jaworski last night told detectives of his Cleveland hangout where he lived for two months with his wife and baby and a gunman pal before his latest and probably fatal adventure with the law. He directed police to a second-floor apartment at 11825 Detroit avenue, in Lakewood, an adjoining suburb, not five miles from the public square. The police found a layout comprising a machine gun, an automatic rifle, two repeating shotguns, seven revolvers, an automatic pistol and 500 rounds of ammunition.

Vasbinder is believed to have lived in the apartment.

JURY URGES DEATH FOR BROTHER'S KILLER

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 17.—Amedio D'Amore, 26, Aliquippa, must go to the electric chair for the killing of his brother, James, 36, at Aliquippa June 7. A jury Saturday brought in a verdict of first degree murder, recommending execution. Jealousy of his elder brother's greater place in the esteem of their parents is belived to have prompted the shooting.

CLASS BUS FARE "EXTORTION"

were NONE. I waited about 15 minutes and you can guess the rest. While I was waiting for one of the rarities of the ittsburgh Railways Company, two or three buses passed this intersection. Inasmuch as no car came, and I was desirous of getting into the city before 8:30 a. m., I boarded the next bus which came along. When a condition such as this exists, you can draw your own conclusions. It is a base extortion of 25c from every person who is waiting for a street car, if they have a scheduled time to get into the city in order to start for their tour of duty.

"I cheerfully admit that I have 'given the Pittsburgh Motor Company my last contribution and would rather pay $1.00 to one of the local cab companies than cater to this 'exclusive carrier system.' It seems to me for 25c the passenger should within a year's time, have controlling interest in the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. However, this to say the least, is a ridiculous statement.

"I am writing you on this subject, in order that you may publish more articles in this connection, inasmuch as I certainly enjoy reading them. You are thoroughly conversant with the carrier system of the City of Pittsburgh, and I think no one could be more efficient in writing on the subject. The hardships which are endured, and will be endured if someone doesn't awaken the slumbering public, certainly call for some action.

"I hope that some day our commuters will pinch themselves and figure out how much money they have donated to an expensive public cause."

told of a number killed and perhaps 100 injured in the West Indian hurricane that struck Palm Beach and vicinity last night.

At least two of the dead were white, the rest negroes, the reports said.

Many homes and public buildings were wrecked by the hurricane, including the plant of the Palm Beach Times.

The county hospital was partially destroyed, but it was not known whether there was any loss of life.

Unconfirmed reports received by radio operators from Boynton, south of Tampa, said that a number of persons had been killed when a school building in which they sought shelter from the hurricane collapsed.

MIAMI UNHARMED

The hurricane's greatest force as it passed over the east coast apparently struck the region lying between Fort Pierce, the Palm Beaches and Jupiter to the north. Miami experienced a heavy wind, but no serious damage.

Towns and hamlets dotting the lower central portion of the state apparently were hard hit and reports indicated the hurricane roared through the section at a velocity carrying from 50 to 125 miles an hour.

The weather bureau declared the storm probably would not abate for another 24 hours, and would not finally blow itself out before 36 hours.

The storm center was over the Florida Peninsula east of Tampa. An unconfirmed report to Jacksonville declared a hospital in West Palm Beach had been demolished, with posible loss of life.

CENTER OVER LAKE

Reports tabulated here show that the hurricane entered Florida in the vicinity of Del Ray, south of the palm beaches, and that it was central at noon today in the vicinity of Lake Okeechobee, where the greatest loss of life came in the 1926 hurricane.

As far south as Fort Lauderdale, 50 miles from West Palm Beach, the gale howled at 100 miles an hour last night. Power and communication lines were down over a wide area south of Jacksonville.

Refugees continued to pour into Daytona Beach, which itself was at the mercy of a 60-mile wind which ripped down roofs, trees and wooden signs. High seas rushed over the sea wall on to the river front park. The refugees, however, reported no loss of life, but said there were many injuries.

Knapp Out; To Tell All

Charles E. Knapp, who spent the last 18 months in the Western Penitentiary for his part in the $320,000 bond swindle which caused the wholesale arrest of officials of the Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company, spent Sunday at his home in Brackenridge street. He was released Saturday from the prison.

Knapp has not yet given a complete explanation of the bond deal. Yesterday he said that he probably would tell such a story when some of the bank officials were placed on trial. He also said his testimony probably would convict one of them.

Those yet to be tried are Attorney Roland A. McCrady, former president of the bank; William Kelly and John L. Nelson, bank officers and Frank T. Redman, a broker. The bank officers are charged with embezzlement, and Redman is charged with larceny by agent.

5 MURDERS LAID TO 'APE MAN'

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—An amazing story of torture and the murders of five boys was before Los Angeles police today as they renewed search on the George Cyrus Northcott "murder farm" near Riverside for graves of the supposed victims of Gordon Stuart Northcott, 21, a fugitive.

Questioned for two days regarding the reported killings, the elder Northcott, held in custody here, finally opened up last night, police said, and "talking like a streak" unfolded a grewsome account of some of the acts of his son, whom he described in appearance as resembling an ape.

Following sensation after sensation unfolded in his vivid story the elder Northcott early today led police to the garage on the small Northcott ranch near Riverside, and search for the corpses of three of the supposed victims was begun under a concrete floor.

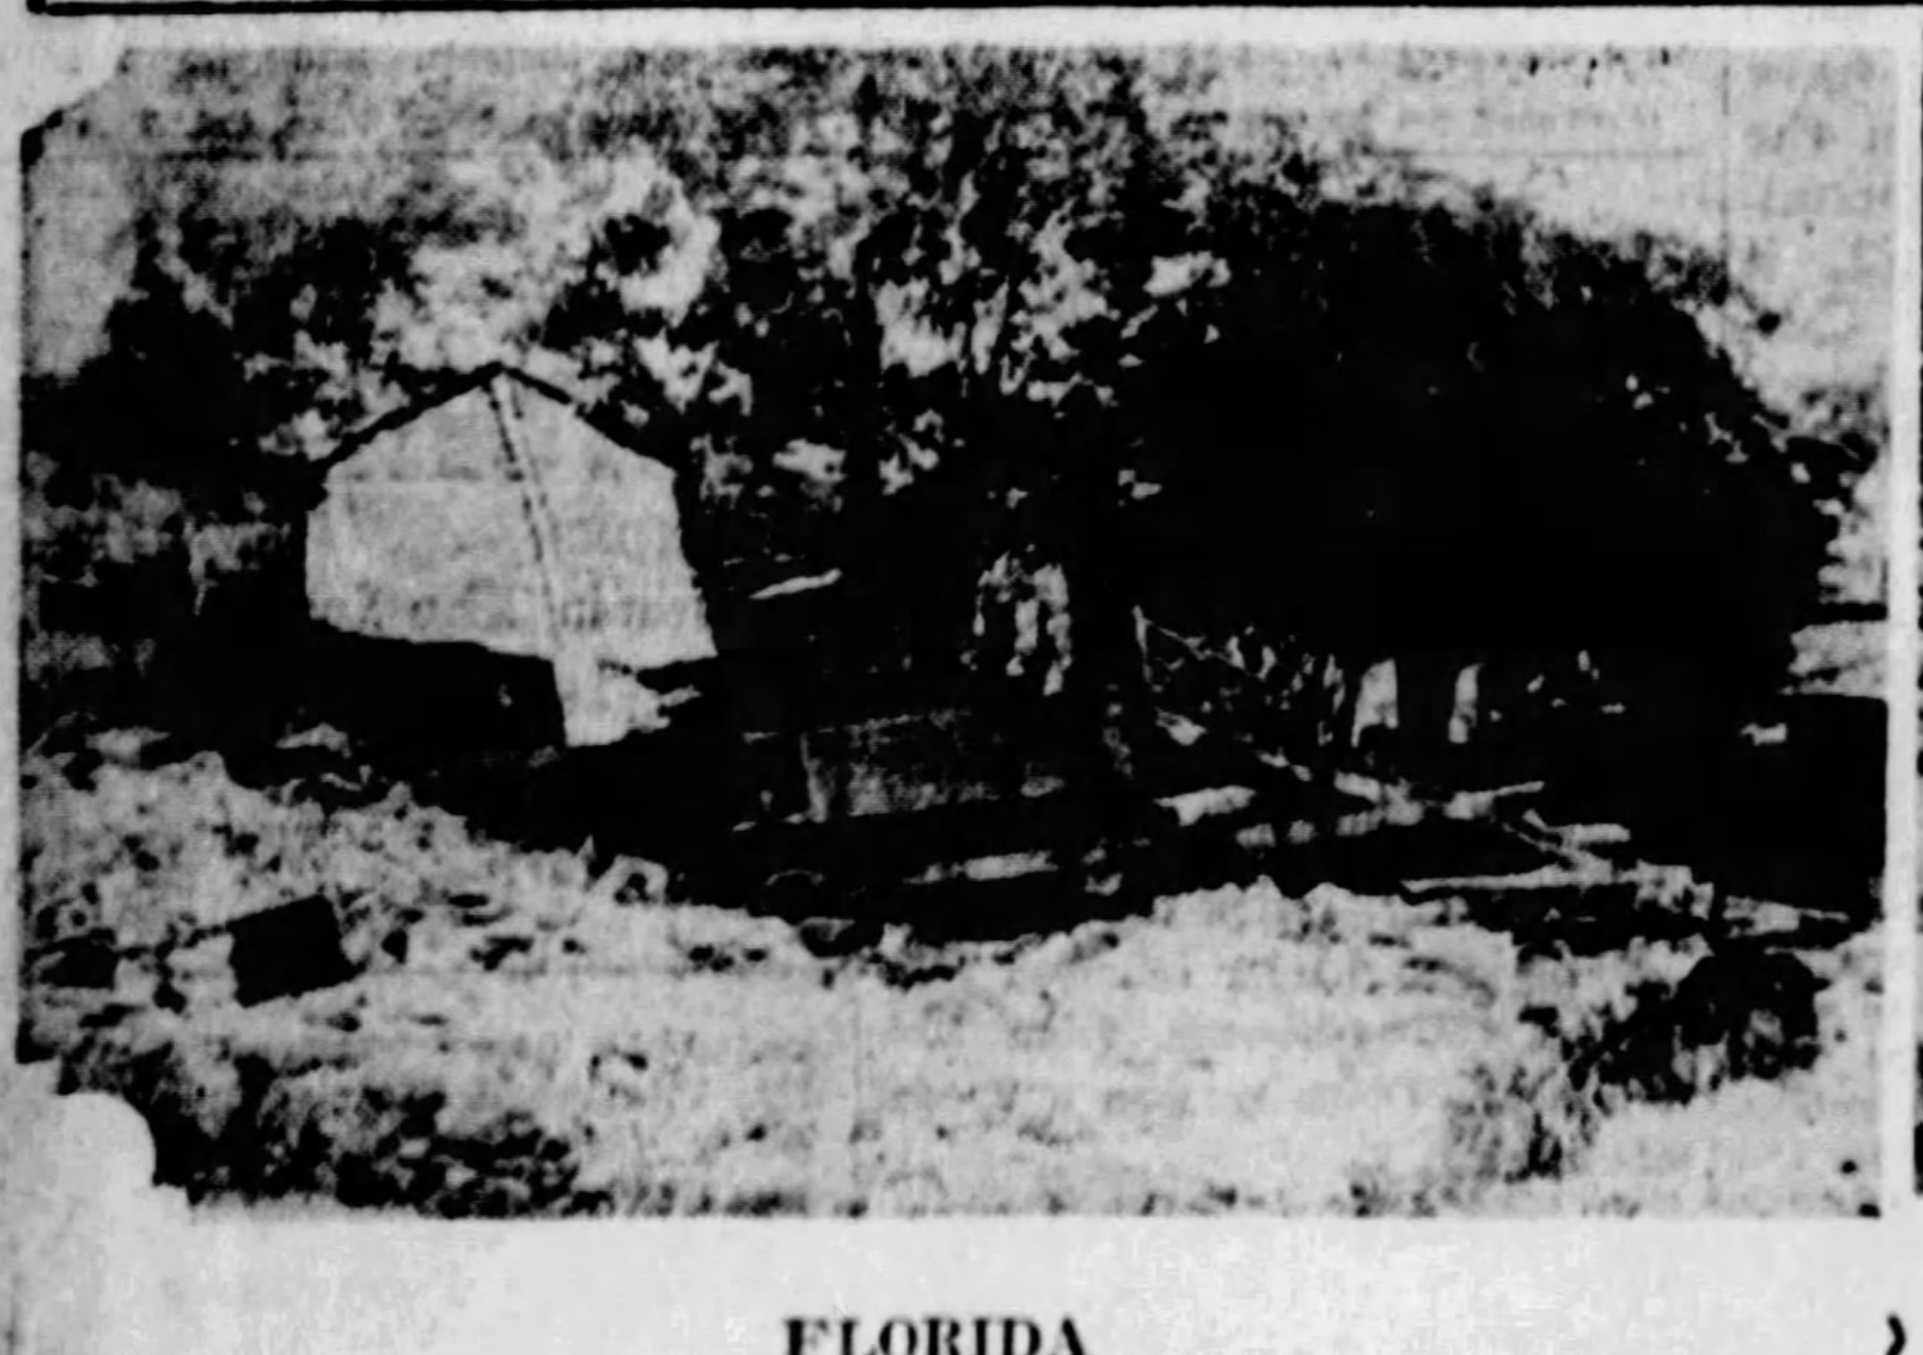
Riverside authorities have announced complaints charging murder will be filed against young Northcott, and his mother, Mrs. Louise Northcott, whom the father said was the only person having any control over the youth, and who is believed to have been an accomplice in the suspected murders.

The elder Northcott told the police that his son and grandson, Sanford Clark, 15, now held by the authorities, had told him of the murders, but that he did not believe their stories.

First reports of the "murder farm" were given police by young Clark following his arrest for Canadian immigration authorities. He said young Northcott had forced him to aid in one of the slayings. Four of the victims, he said, were young boys kidnaped in suburbs of Los Angeles in the last few months, and held and abused at the farm before they were put to death.

Account of a fifth murder was added by the father of the suspect in his rambling story. It was reported to have occurred in a miner's cabin nearby where Northcott and a miner are reported to have slain another miner.

Florida Embattled :-: Hurricanes Roar Destruction :-: East, Illinois



FLORIDA

This hurricane damage down in Porto Rico represents that which will mark fair Florida when the tropical storm raging today along the East Coast between Miami and Fort Pierce abates. The fearful blow first swept Porto Rico and other West Indian isles.

DOWN EAST

And at the same time, New Hampshire is busy setting itself to rights after a tornado which took a heavy toll in property damage. This house in West Rindge was thoroughly damaged and gives a heart throb in the tearful search of these little girls for their dolls.

ILLINOIS

Damage that will total millions lies in the wake of the tornado that swept Illinois had passed over Rockford. The toll in human life, too, mounts. In this building, that of the National Chair Company, rescue workers probe for bodies of workers believed to have been killed. Wreckage throughout the area is widespread.

1,000 DEAD IN PORTO RICO STORM

Beauty in Abundance :-: Miss Pittsburgh Chosen :-: A Visitor Wins

A PULCHRITUDE PARADE!

THE QUEEN!

THE LAST FOURSOME

ALMOST WON

AT THE POST!

Who ever heard of a shortage in the beauty crop? There is none! Current proof of that daring statement was apparent at the Willows pool, Oakmont, when, so the promoters agreed, "Miss Pittsburgh, 1928" was selected. Among the competitors were (above) Irene Chapp, Marchita Rolande, Elinor Noah, Grace McCutcheon, Mary Lipinsky, Dorothy Gildernew, Ethel Orf and Bertha Muller.

THE WINNER!

Mary Lipinsky, East Pittsburgh, walks (or perhaps rides) the streets of her home town today, happy and contented. She was named "Miss Pittsburgh!" An auto, a trip to Atlantic City and New York and other honors are hers. Now, doesn't beauty pay dividends?

FITTEST SURVIVE

From this last quartet the judges picked the winner. It was mighty critical judging to shave the field down to four, but imagine the responsibility of the judges in selecting just one from this group! In the order of their appearance: Catherine Ginser, Duquesne; Mary Lipinsky, Virginia Brandis, Carnegie, and Ida Burke, Butler street.

PREFERRED BLONDE

It's just too bad, of course, that pretty Virginia Brandis didn't win, but Virginia consoles herself in the knowledge that she's "Miss Pittsburgh No. 2."

PORTO RICO STORM TAKES 1,000 LIVES

PORTO RICO, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—With the hurricane death toll conservatively estimated at 1,000, the spectre of famine stalked through Porto Rico today. At least 300,000 persons were stated to be hungry. Disease was threatened.

Half of the islands' population of almost 2,000,000 was thought to be homeless. It was feared that the property damage would pass $100,000,000.

Declaration of martial law, requisitioning and rationing of food and drafting of all able-bodied men was urged upon Gov. Horace M. Towner, by a group of leading citizens.

The group in a petition asserted that so far neither the government nor any other agency had taken adequate steps for relief to prevent sickness and starvation, nor to ascertain the facts as to immediate needs.

The National Guard has been ordered out to protect property from looters. Efforts were made to stop profiteering.

Nine of the island's 77 towns reported more than 250 dead. Others reported no loss of life and communication with others lacking. It will be weeks before accurate reports can be received from the rural section in which more than 70 per cent of the people live.

Physicians and others familiar with conditions said that a death toll with 1,000 as a final figure was a conservative estimate. No continental Americans have been reported either killed or injured.

JOSEPH W. RAY, JURIST, DIES

Former Judge Joseph W. Ray, 79, of Greene county, died Saturday night in Mercy Hospital, where he had been a patient for 10 days. He was born in Morris township, Greene county, May 25, 1849.

In 1888 he was elected congressman on the Republican ticket from the Twenty-fourth District which comprised Fayette, Washington, part of Allegheny and Greene counties. In 1915 he was elected judge of Greene county and when his term expired in 1926, he refused to be a candidate for re-election.

Besides his wife, he leaves six children, Attorney Joseph W. Ray, of Uniontown; Lloyd Ray, of Waynesburg; Mrs. George D. Jenkins, Waynesburg; Miss Mabel Ray, Washington, D. C.; Miss Helen Ray at home, and Frank Ray, of Canton, O.

U.S. STEAMER IN THAMES CRASH

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The American steamer Minnewaska, plowing up the Thames this morning, collided with the British steamer Wendy below Gravesend and sustained some damage on the starboard side. During the run up the river the cable of the Belgian steamer Marguerite also fouled the Minnewaska's starboard propeller. The vessel was to dock this afternoon.

Billy Barton, famouse racehorse which finished second in this year's Grand National and will compete in the same English classic at Aintree next spring, was aboard the Minnewaska, but escaped unscratched. The horse is owned by Howard Bruce, Baltimore publisher.

Threaten Death to Captive

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—"Would you know your own son's head if you saw it?"

That is the latest ghoulish and cryptic message to be received by Frank Ranieri here today from the mysterious realms of Sicilian terrorists, who are holding his 10-year-old son, Billy, for a ransom of $60,000.

The message was received by the distracted father while squads of heavily armed detectives were searching the Melrose Park section of Chicago in a last minute attempt to rescue the lad from his Mafia abductors. The wives of two of the prisoners suspected of the kidnaping had sent the officers there when they declared positively it was the rendezvous of the kidnapers.

One of the men held, Angelo Petitti, authorities said, is Chicago's newest Cammorist chieftain and actual head of the kidnaping plot. The other is Salvatore Mastrianni, confessed "penman" for a Black Hand extortion ring.

Struggling to shield their husbands, the women told police all they knew of the crime. They intimated that their husbands were acting under orders from higher authorities of the Mafia.

Meanwhile, Petitti was being grilled by Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hoffman. For more than than eight hours the Sicilian stoutly denied his connection with the kidnaping plot. However, at the end of the inquisition, Hoffman declared that Petitti had revealed to him the operation of a gigantic extortion ring.

"In the past 30 days," said Hoffman, "the extortionists have victimized at least 50 Sicilians, taking from them large sums of money."

Petitti, the assistant state's attorney charges, was the leader of the plots and that his operations cover a period of ten years, during which countless citizens have paid heavy tribute.

Confronted with Petitti, the boy's father openly charged him with the kidnaping of his son.

"He took him," cried the enraged father: "He doesnt' work and he didn't get fat by being honest. I know him. He has two automobiles. How did he get them?"

Petitti cowered and whimpered that he knew nothing of the plot to kidnap Ranieri's son. When told that his wife had broken the traditional silence of the Mafia he turned silent.

Petitti's statement that he was in no way connected with the abduction was flatly contradicted by Mastrianni, who told the assistant state's attorney that he had seen Petitti in long conversations with the kidnaped boy's father.

Meckley's Dapper TaleLie

The murder of Dr. Harry R. Dapper was as unsolved as ever today. John F. Meckley, 24, who followed his confession to the slaying of the Carrick physician with a denial, was arraigned in Central Police Court with two pals, Leroy Madden, 22, and Ed McCallin, 26, and held for court on a charge of robbing the Wick drugstore at 4101 Butler street. It was reported they would eventually be sent to the Farview Home, where criminal mentalities are studied.

Meckley, arrested last week by state troopers, signed a confession which was later proved bogus. His motive, he tried to convince the law, was that he had sold stolen dope to Dr. Dapper, but had not been paid for the stuff.

Others implicated by Meckley were discharged by Magistrate Orie. They are Ralph and Frank Maratta, Joe Petrucci and Frank Butler.

County detectives started mailing out 10,000 posters offering rewards of $6,250 for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Dr. Dapper. The posters contain a description of the slayer as given by Henry R. Dapper, father of the slain physician, who accompanied him on the death ride which he took with a stranger to give aid to "a sick wife."

PARROT WON'T GO WHEN WAGON COMES; CLUBBED

It took an East End policeman two hours to arrest one South American macaw, and the policeman, who usually drives the patrol wagon, was on the jump every minute.

"Pete," ordinarily called a parrot, escaped Friday while being transferred from his summer home in Riverview park to his winter residence in Highland park zoo. For two days he had a shore home at the edge of No. 2 reservoir in Highland park, and yesterday moved into North Euclid avenue.

He was in a tree when police were notified of his presence. A large portion of the male and juvenile population was out with sheets and pillow cases trying to effect his capture. When Albert Beck, driver of the East End patrol arrived, he coaxed Pete off his perch with crackers. As Beck reached for the bird, it attacked him and he had to stun it with a billy before he captured it.

Waste Laid To Estate Trustees

Alleging excessive fees and mishandling in many particulars, Mrs. Catherine Hibbert today filed an exception in Common Pleas Court to the stewardship of the $3,000.000 estate of her daughter, Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, by Attorneys George H. Calvert and Henry G. Wasson.

Mrs. Davidson is confined in a "$30,000 home built by the trustees," the mother's petition, before Judge George V. Moore, states, "and the plaintiff and other relatives are interfered with in visiting her."

Some of the expenditures made by the two trustees, the petition declares, "are useless, wasteful, and not of benefit" to her daughter's mental condition. She particularly cites in this regard fees totaling $120,000 for three years, amounting to $20,000 annually for each attorney. Another item objected to by the mother in the account of the trusteeship, filed last month, is $12,600 for "office rent, telephone and stenographic services" which the mother declares are unnecessary. She also objects to $6,000 a year paid T. M. T. McKeenan for attendance upon her daughter.

Mrs. Hibbert's petition states that she will be able to prove funds from her daughter's estate "have been invested in securities other than those approved by law for the investment of trust funds, and that sums from the estate have been loaned to individuals in a manner not approved by law." Her petition was filed by Attorney Arnold M. Replogle and the firm of Thorp, Bostwick, Stewart and Reed.

SAVE GIRL'S ATTACKER FROM IRE OF MOB

Luther Matthews, 30, a Negro, of Bruceton, was saved from lynching yesterday afternoon, when a mob of 200 persons, mostly Negroes, attempted to take him from coal and iron policemen and Justice of the Peace J. M. O'Rourke, of Broughton, following an alleged attack upon Hazel Coleman, 3, a Negro, of Bruceton.

Sent to a store by her parents, the tot was accosted by the Negro, who is said to have attacked her and then to have slashed her with a knife. Her screams attracted police and a score of other men. Picking up sticks and stones, the mob went after the attacker, but was repulsed by the police, who drove to the Brentwood police station, where Matthews was locked up for the night.

The girl was taken by her parents to the Presbyterian Hospital, where it was stated that she was suffering from lacerations of the face and head.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

The Care of the Hands

THE time is past when a woman devoted all her beauty care to her complexion, giving possible superficial and spasmodic attention to her hair. We know secrets of irresistible loveliness nowadays. We are learning that even "It" can be acquired. How simple these secrets are after all!

MARIA JERITZA.

We know that daily baths mean a fresh skin, that regular shampoos bring shining hair, that abundant, restful sleep brings pep, vivacity and poise, and unbitten finger-mails and cared-for nails and hands, mean nice hands. Grace and social charm are not to be veneered on thinly, but are acquired slowly and surely by physical and mental training and observance of the rules of health and cleanliness.

You may be sure that with this new knowledge of health, grace and charm, standards of beauty are going to rise higher and higher until we shall soon have a race more lovely than any the world has yet seen.

All this may seem far removed from the subject of beautiful hands and how to acquire them, but it is not. The modern beauty philosophy, that feminine loveliness is a unit, a harmony of all details, shows how essential lovely, well-cared for hands are to the up-to-date woman.

You need not devote hours every day to your hands to make them beautiful. The process is very simple. But persistence is necessary, that few moments from time to time which cannot be omitted if you hope for success.

You wash your hands four times each day of course, possibly oftener. It is a matter of plain cleanliness to give them a thorough scrub before each meal and before going to bed at night.

Each time you wash them, immerse them in a bowl of warm soap-suds made with some pure soap such as castile. Lather hands, wrists and nails over and over. Scrub under the nails and well up over your wrists with your hand-brush. Now draw a fresh bowl of cool, clean water. If you wish to bleach your hands and soften the water, add three drops of tincture of benzoin. In this mixture let your hands soak one minute, then dry them gently on a clean towel, wiping the cuticle back with the towel and your finger tips.

Next pour just a few drops of hand lotion into one palm and spread it over both hands and your fingers. Massage it in by rubbing and wringing your hands. The next step, which should always follow washing the hands, is to wrap a bit of absorbent cotton over the tip of an orangewood stick and clean under your nail-rims. Last of all comes half a minute of limbering exercises.

Try to shake your fingers off your hands. Take each finger in turn between the fingers of the other hand, and rotate it without bending the knuckles. Pick up the flesh of your hands and fingers between your thumb and forefinger and pinch it gently but firmly. This entire process of lathering, scrubbing, rinsing, drying, cleaning the nails and exercise and massage should not require more than five minutes. And it is five minutes well spent.

When you have to immerse your hands in hot soapsuds to wash dishes or launder clothes, first rub in plenty of hand lotion; then pull on old cotton gloves and lastly a loose pair of rubber gloves. In this way, instead of coarsening and chapping your hands, the immersion in hot water will help the lotion to sink in underneath the rubber gloves and will make your hands, nails and wrists more beautiful.

GIRL DEFENDS SLAYING

"SHOT TO SAVE MY HONOR!" DECLARES HIKING BEAUTY

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 17.—"I shot in self-defense. They were attacking me, one had me by the shoulders, the other about the body. So I reached with my one free arm, pulled the small revolver out of my belt, and fired. I think I hit McCormick in the leg."

This, auburn-haired Loveda Boyle, 18-year-old hitch-hiker, who was en route home from Okmulgee, Okla., to Oil City, insists is the story of what happened at 5 a. m. last Friday on the main highway a few miles out of Akron.

She did not shoot to wound seriously—merely to stop the alleged attack of Robert McCormick and to frighten S. A. Ritchie, driver of the Ford coupe. She shot McCormick in the abdomen, however, instead of the leg, and he died Friday evening in an Akron hospital.

That same day, by more auto lifts, Miss Boyle—who was formerly Mrs. Jack Van Ausdall and divorced only last September 4—arrived at her home in Cranberry township, Venango county, told her mother the whole story, she says, and prepared, as she admits, "to face the music for shooting a man who assaulted me."

HELD FOR MURDER

The girl is in the county jail here awaiting extradition to Ohio, and held also for a hearing next Saturday on a second degree murder charge. She pleaded not guilty at the preliminary arraignment. The girl declares she didn't know she had wounded McCormick fatally until arresting officers told her in the Oil City police station that the man was dead. He was 31 years old and Ritchie is about 37 or 38. It was Ritchie who was driving the car.

"I had only been in the machine a few minutes when they stopped and told me they were going to attack me. I told them I would not let them—that I wanted to get out, and they said they would not let me go. We struggled. I had a small pearl-handled .25 calibre revolver in my belt, and with my one free arm—after I had repeatedly warned them that they should let me go, I reached around and grabbed it.

WARNED, THEN FIRED

"I stuck the gun against McCormick's side, and told him to let up. 'We'll call your bluff,' he said. I warned him again—and then I fired.

"'Now maybe you'll let me go,' I said. I thought I shot him in the leg. His companion, Ritchie, called, 'Bob, are you hurt?' and he said, 'yes, she shot me.' Ritchie opened the door and I got out. I went to a farm house and tried to get the sheriff's office on the phone, and when I could not reach him and officers failed to come I went to Youngstown, getting another ride, and then several more which brought me home to Oil City at 10 minutes after 12 noon on Friday.

Miss Boyle, divorced from John Van Ausdall, formerly of Oil City, said they had been married April 18, 1927, at Little Valley, N. Y. After the legal separation, she decided to return home to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Boyle, of Cranberry, Pa., (Venango county), and left Tuesday last on the long hitch hike home.

Miss Boyle said that she was successful in getting long rides from the Midwest, and that before reaching Akron she had ridden with an ex-service man from Vandalia, Ill., to Akron.

HOOVER INVADES SMITH'S JERSEY STRONGHOLD

NEWARK SPEECH WILL BID FOR LABOR VOTE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Herbert Hoover today began his first of three personal drives to win the industrial East to his banner.

The Republican nominee will tour New Jersey by motor this afternoon and tomorrow, with a speech tonight at Newark. On his trip his managers expected him to come into personal contact with from 500,000 to 1,000,000 of New Jersey's inhabitants.

The trip will mark Hoover's first invasion of the territory in which his Democratic rival, Gov. Alfred E. Smith, has been conceded great strength. By a coincidence, it comes at a time when Smith has left to invade the Middle West, where Hoover has been granted a similar concession.

BID FOR LABOR VOTE

In his address tonight, Hoover will make his great bid for the support of organized labor. He will elaborate upon the policies laid down in his acceptance speech and in the Republican platform and his efforts will be directed toward holding the workers of the East in the Republican ranks.

Hoover was due to reach Newark at 1 o'clock, eastern standard time. He was to be met by a parade of automobiles, which he will join for a tour of Newark, the nearby Oranges and Montclair. Later in the afternoon he will visit Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison at their home in Menlo Park.

At 5:30 the nominee will attend a reception in Newark, where he will meet the Republican leaders, whose duty it will be to keep the state in the Republican column in November. After that, he will dine privately and rest for the speech in the First Regiment Armory at 8 o'clock, Eastern Standard time.

After his address, Hoover will motor to the Edison home to spend the night with the electrical wizard. Over the week-end, Edison issued a statement, declaring his allegiance to Hoover. The inventor revealed that some newspaper has stated he was for Smith and he said he wished to correct this error.

BUSY PROGRAM

Hoover faces an active program for tomorrow. He first will visit the Newark municipal airport early in the forenoon. Then he will lead another motor caravan on a tour of Northern New Jersey cities. His itinerary will carry him through Jersey City, Hoboken and Weehawken and intervening places. At 1 o'clock he will lunch in Newark at a party given by Senator Walter E. Edge to the Republican county chairmen of New Jersey.

A third motor tour will follow, on which Hoover will visit Princeton, Elizabeth and Trenton. He will reboard his train at Trenton at 5 o'clock for the return trip to Washington.

DISPOSAL PLANT HEARING HELD

Coraopolis borough, which recently had keen controversy over its light plant, is facing stiff opposition in locating its garbage disposal plant on a six-acre tract in Moon and Robinson townships. A hearing on the protest of Robert Reed, farmer, was begun today before Judge T. J. Ford in Common Pleas Court. The borough had a large force of witnesses to testify as to the necessity of the plant and Reed marshaled residents of the valley in which the borough seeks to locate the plant.

BOSS SLAIN IN "HOLDUP," STENOGRAPHER ENDS LIFE

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Police today attempted to piece together loose ends of an attempted holdup in which two men were fatally shot last Friday night. W. O. Bohannon, 47, prominent Evansville attorney, was found dying from two bullet wounds in front of his home Friday night, and Frank Mills, 19, of Detroit, was found dead in a field near here Saturday morning.

Frank Paisley, 24, of Essex, Mo., pal of Mills, who was arrested Saturday as he viewed Mills' body in a local morgue, said that Bohannon shot Mills when the two youths came upon the attorney and a woman companion in a parked automobile in the country. Paisley shot Bohannon, he confessed, "because he got my buddy."

Another possible angle of the mystery developed last night when Miss Norma Fueger, 21, Bohannon's auburn-haired stenographer, committed suicide by drinking poison at her home. The girl's mother said her daughter returned home about 9 o'clock Friday night. This was 15 minutes after Bohannon was found by his wife in front of their home, seated at the wheel of his automobile.

Paisley's story to police related how Bohannon made a break for a gun while Mills, a former pugilist, was attempting to tie him up. The double shooting followed. Then, fatally wounded, Bohannon drove his automobile through a corn field, across the fields to a road and five miles back to Evansville. Found by his wife, Bohannon gasped that he had been shot by hold-up men, and died.

30,000 MILES in 26,326 MINUTES

You can experience the thrill of driving a car identical with those which won this amazing victory over time and distance. At Atlantic City Speedway these four shining-new President Eights, their motors sealed by the A. A. A., swung wide-open into an ordeal such as no cars ever faced before. For 19 days and 18 nights the two roadsters averaged better than 68 miles per hour, the sedans 64.15 and 63.99 miles per hour!

Any one of these four Studebaker Presidents might just as easily have been your new car. But for pure chance they would have been sent to some Studebaker dealer.

There's a new Studebaker President Eight sedan at (think of it!) $1685, waiting for you to command its power. MILK-ICE FUND STILL SHORT OF $3,000

Only $233.22 is necessary to bring the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund up to $3,000. If everyone who reads these lines were to give even 25 cents towards buying milk for those 300 babies, what a sigh of happiness would go up from Milk and Ice Headquarters where the several workers are hoping with all their might for the $3,000.

Bought by the single quart, it would take 25 cents to pay for one day's milk supply for one baby. But, buying as the association does, the quarters are stretched until it takes but six of them to purchase a baby's food for an entire week. In other words, $1.50 will satisfy a child's milk requirements for seven days. That isn't a large sum, but multiplied by 300 (the number of babies usually on the charts), it grows into a figure that must be reckoned with responsibility. The fund today has reached $2,766.78. Are you among those who will contribute enough to buy a quart of milk and help boost the total to the desired $3,000? Of course if you choose to give several quarters or several times several quarters, no one will object.

COOK EXPERT ARRIVES

SUN-TELE FREE SCHOOL OPENS WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, of New York, nationally known cooking expert and home economist, arrived in Pittsburgh today to prepare for the opening of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's second annual free cooking school, which she will conduct Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the Soldiers' Memorial Hall. At noon today Mrs. Riggs Crabtree was a guest and speaker at a luncheon at the Congress of Women's Clubs.

The cooking school is being sponsored jointly by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Congress of Women's Clubs. The program of lectures by Mrs. Riggs Crabtree contains many salient facts on cooking and home economy and efficiency that should prove of inestimable value to every wife. In addition to demonstrating many new and easier ways of food preparation, Mrs. Riggs Crabtree will have many new recipes that will make the housewife's task of preparing three different meals a day more of a joy than a problem.

TICKET DEMAND HEAVY

The demand for tickets to the Convention of Housewives has exceeded all expectations. They are obtainable free of charge at the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph office, at Spear & Co., or at any Kroger, Atlantic and Pacific, P. H. Butler or Donahue store, or at the cooking school dors.

Pittsburgh merchants have co-operated splendidly with the Pittsburg Sun-Telegraph in the cooking school and have donated several valuable pieces of kitchen equipment to be distributed as prizes. The list includes a General Electric refrigerator, a Tappan gas range, a Hoosier kitchen cabinet, a complete set of Wear-ever cooking utensils and a Lady Dover iron and percolator. In addition, 25 market baskets packed with nationally advertised food products will be distributed daily. Tickets bearing numbers will be given each of the housewives attending the four sessions and the awarding of the prizes will be governed by drawing.

In each of the 25 baskets there will be two tickets to the Stanley Theater for next week, when "The Whip," motion picture, will be shown with Cleo Mayfield and Cecil Lean, late stars of "No, No Nanette," as the stage attraction.

COOLIDGE PROCLAIMS FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

NEGRO KILLED; WOMAN CUT

A Negro was shot to death and a Negro woman is dying from stab wounds as a result of quarrels in their homes yesterday.

John Jeffries, 33, rear of 2541 Fifth avenue, was shot dead in his home, police say, by Walter Young, 32, Negro, with whom he lived. Police say Jeffries was intoxicated and argued with his wife. Young intervened, snatched up a shotgun and fired, police say. Young and the wives of both men were arrested.

Eleanor Gardner 30, a Negro, of 1604 Colwell street, is near death in Passavant Hospital with a stab wound. Tony Martinez, a Mexican, 35, "no home," is in Mercy Hospital under police guard. He was stabbed in the right shoulder.

Police say Martinez stabbed the woman and that she stabbed Martinez while defending herself. Carlo Ayala, a Mexican, who lives in the Gardner home, is held as a witness.

ART JURY ARRIVES

GROTESQUE LINES OF NEW SCHOOL DEFENDED

The grotesque art of the new school, with its distortion of natural lines and exaggeration of color, was warmly defended in Pittsburgh today by Colin Gill, of England, and Anto Carte, of Belgium, members of the jury of award that will pick the prize winners in the Carnegie Institute's twenty-seventh international exhibition of paintings.

Robert Spencer, of the American Committee of Selection, agreed with their views.

The jury of award is composed of Carte, Gill and two Americans, Rockwell Kent and Ernest Lawson. The committee of selection, which hooses the American paintings to e hung in the exhibition, consists f Kent, Lawson, Spencer, Jonas ie and Mahonri Young. All are tists.

he seven men came to Pittsburgh ay from the Rolling Rock Count Club, where they spent the wk-end. The committee of selection will complete its labors this afternoon, and the jury of award will do its work tomorrow. The exhibition will be held October 18 to December 9.

"Art begins," said Carte, quoting Richard Wagner, "where nature leaves off."

"Photography," said Colin Gill, "has emancipated painters from the necessity of presenting accurate likenesses of the subjects that they paint."

"Art cannot be taught," said Spencer in this connection. "All that can be taught is the mechanics of painting."

HONOR NAVY'S 'FATHER,' BARRY, DEAD 125 YEARS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Tribute to the life and exploits of Commodore John Barry, "Father of the American Navy," was voiced by speakers on the one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of his death, at the statue erected to him in Independence Square, and at his grave. While four navy veterans stood at attention in front of the flower-decked grave at St. Mary's Catholic Church, a volley was fired and taps sounded.

Attend the Sun-Telegraph Cooking School, conducted by the noted Cooking Expert, Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree, in Memorial Hall, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

the most scientific, costly and efficient Brakes ever developed

For a joyous new motoring thrill, the amazing ease and responsiveness of the new Cadillac-La Salle Duplex Mechanical system of Four-Wheel Brakes surpasses any advance in driving facility that has yet come within your experience. This new system of braking is in fact two independent systems—powerful yet velvet-grip in operation. The brakes respond to the lightest touch of the toe and stop the car with incredibly slight brake pedal pressure.

This is but one of the remarkable new engineering achievements in the New Cadillacs and LaSalles. Others are: (1) New Cadillac-LaSalle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission. (2) Security-Plate Glass that cannot fly into fragments in case of a collision. (3) New adjustable front seats. (4) Principles of pneumatic control engineered in chassis and body construction. (5) Chromium Plating, the new metallurgical treatment of exposed nickel parts. (6) Quieter, smoother and more powerful 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder engines.

A telephone call to the nearest Cadillac-LaSalle dealer will bring a demonstrator to your door.

La Salle $2295

The new LaSalle is priced from $2295 to $2875, the new Cadillac from $3295 to $7000, all prices f. o. b. Detroit. The General Motors time payment plan is a convenient way for you to enjoy all that Cadillac and LaSalle offer, while you pay for the cars out of income.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Fall Social Season Begins Today With at Least Two or Three Debbie Affairs Scheduled for Each Week

HAVE you ever been able to agree with that dyspeptic poet and his followers who sigh because melancholy fall is here, and who call autumn the saddest season of the year? To me it is the most colorful time. The whole world is rich with gold and scarlet and amethyst.

Fall is the beginning of so many things, too, and beginnings are exciting things, aren't they? For the debutantes it is the beginning of "grown-up" life, or, to be more exact, the formal beginning. No longer does the young girl have to wait until her debut to attend her first dance, with the exception of school affairs. At the summer resorts most sub-debs now have their first peep into the social life of their elders.

Some of our buds of this fall are now back in town ready for the opening season, and that opening is not far away. Do you realize that beginning with today there'll be at least two or three debbie affairs each week? Tonight, you'll recall, Miss Eleanor Evans will give a luncheon in the Oakmont Country Club for her debutante cousin, Louise Evans.

AUTUMN in all its riotous colors will be here for the debut of another charming bud of this season—Helen West, daughter of the Charles H. Wests.

Her mother will give a tea in the family home on Wednesday afternoon, October 24, to introduce her daughter to her friends.

A DEBBIE who has attended as many social affairs during this last summer as any girl out a season or two is Clara Dorothea Jenkins. Up at Spring Lake she has been a guest at all important events of the summer society colony.

Her mother, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, of Morewood avenue, will "bring her daughter out" at a tea, I've just heard, on November 30. And the tea will be given in her Morewood avenue home. The Jenkins family, I might mention to refresh your memory, has its summer home at Spring Lake, N. J.

A number of affairs for Dorothea are arranged for the very last day or so of November and the first day of December, for then she will be able to be absent from college. She is a student at Bryn Mawr.

On the day after her debut, Mrs. Emma W. Locke, of the Iroquois apartments, aunt of Mrs. Jenkins, will give a breakfast in the University Club, followed by a theater party, for Dorothea. And then the hour of 12 will strike for the debbie, and she will have to hurry back to Bryn Mawr.

FROM time to time we hear about Pittsburgh's distinguished citizen, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. He left Washington Saturday for Long Island to spend a few days with his son-in-law and daughter, the David K. Estes Bruces. Mrs. Bruce is the former Ailsa Mellon.

AMONG the visitors in Sewickley just now are the junior James William Bennings, who are guests of Mrs. Benning's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Phelps Rose. You remember, of course, that Mrs. Bennings was Sarah Rose Frick before she married. The Bennings moved to Montreal not long ago from their estate in British Columbia and expect to make their permanent home there.

JAMES A. FEE, of Paulson avenue, has announced the marriage of his daughter, Ruth Fee Zane, of Detroit, and Elmer Thomas Coles, of Detroit, which was solemnized Saturday at 11 o'clock in the home of the bride's brother, B. Reese Fee in Toledo, by the Rev. J. Fletcher Lewis, pastor of the Euclid Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Toledo. After a southern and eastern motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Coles will be at home in Birwood avenue, Detroit.

MR. AND MRS. J. IRWIN GREEN, of Walnut street, Wilkinsburg, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Susan Elizabeth Green, and Paul Hunter Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Chapman, of Wellsburg, W. Va. They will make their home in Walnut street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Chapman are graduates of Grove City College, class of 1927.

MRS. P. J. SULLIVAN, of Thirty-ninth street, will be hostess at a garden party and bridge Saturday on the grounds of St. Eude's Institute, formerly the Home of the Good Shepherd, in Lincoln avenue, East End, for the benefit of the children of the institute. Mrs. Sullivan will be assisted by Mrs. J. H. Ford, of Butler street. Bridge, "500," Old Maid, Bingo and euchre will be played. The children of the home have made the favors for the party.

MISS VIOLET GERTRUDE CORRELL, of Holden street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Correll, of Parnassus, has chosen October 2 as the date for her marriage to Eugene R. Seifert, of the Bellefield Dwellings.

THE past matrons of Brookline Chapter No. 117, O. E. S., will hold a card party Saturday afternoon in Kaufmann's. Miss Ethel Breitweiser is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth D. Gray and Mrs. Ada M. Moore.

MR. AND MRS. J. MILTON RYALL, of East End avenue, have just returned from a motor trip to Bloomington, Ind., where their daughter, Miss Catherine Ryall, entered the University of Indiana. Their son, John Raall, left a week ago to enter Pennsylvania State College.

The negotiations probably will mean a study by the powers of the possibility of revision of the Dawes plan, the study of the possibility of commercialization of the reparations bonds and the study of the relations between reparation settlements and inter-allied debts.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Boles Given Stellar Role But He Doesn't Know It, As He Is Far Away and at Work

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 13.

JOHN BOLES, who recently signed a five-year Universal contract, has been selected by Warner Brothers as the ideal star for its production of "The Desert Song" as an all-sound film. And Universal has courteously loaned him for the role. John isn't yet aware of his good fortune, as he is on location and definite word hasn't reached him. Boles won wide recognition in "Kitty's Kisses" and other musical successes before Gloria Swanson took him from the stage for her leading man in "Sunya." Since then he has played various important roles in the silent drama. With the advent of the "talkies" he found himself in great demand.

Johnny Arthur, who has been playing the masculine comedy role in the local presentation of the play, has been signed to do the same part in the audible version of Romberg's operatta. Johnny is more or less of an old hand at making pictures and is quite at home before the camera.

The latest Hollywood elopement to thrill the film colony is that of Virginia Bradford, Pathe star, and Cedric Belfrage, writer. A romance which had its inception when the youthful author interviewed the actress, culminated in a motor trip across the Mexican border and a Tia Juana wedding[illegible]

Virginia has ap[illegible] in many pictures and at the [illegible]ent time is considered one of screenland's best bets by reason of her naturally fine and well-trained voice plus her wide screen experience.

Belfrage is an Englishman, son of a fashionable London physician. He is a Cambridge University graduate, and since his residence in Hollywood has become a widely read writer of movie stories both here and abroad.

Some of the folks are all of a doodah because D. W. Gricith has taken a voice test of himself. D. W. used to be an actor, you know, and now they are saying that he proposes to don grease-paint again and play a part in his next picture, which is to be an audible.

It is widely rumored in inside circles that John Gilbert, whose present contract expires within a few months, is making arrangements to move over with Joseph M. Schenck's United Artists stars, where he will make "specials" like "Doug" and Mary and the rest. Naturally there'll be no confirmation of this until it actually happens. It's one of those things—one of those many things—that no one who knows will talk about.

Marie Prevost telephones from Salt Lake City that she's leaving the Mormon town for a location trip into into Idaho, where some sequences of "The Exodus" are to be filmed. The full name of the picture is "The Exodus of the New World." Ben Lyon, Marie's leading man, portrays the role of the Mormon hero. The film has to do with the long trek of the pioneers across the continent.

The new boy, Robert Castle, who was brought back from Germany by Robert Lissman, and who is to play opposite Clara Bow in "Three Week Ends," is a dead ringer for "Buddy" Rogers in appearance. He can't speak a word of English. But he'll learn—he'll learn!

FILM ACTRESS :-: FINDS HERSELF :-: IN MIXED COMPANY

Ruth Taylor gets behind Hoover, the candidate in this instance being represented by a lay figure, first exhibit of the mixture of wax and colors.

The terrifying gent beside Ruth is Pancho Villa—in wax, work of L. F. Oates of the Museum of California.

Gentle and life-like is Oates' figure of Luther Burbank and Ruth snuggles up to it with as much confidence as though the noted plant wizard were plucking flowers for her.

Miss Taylor experiments with the small needle with which each hair in the head of a wax figure is inserted—100,000 of them.

HERBERT HOOVER and Al Jolson go on the air tonight, one to educate, the other to entertain.

Herbert Hoover will be heard through WCAE at 8:30 p. m., when he will speak in furtherance of his campaign as Republican candidate for President.

Al Jolson, the noted singer of ballads and mammy songs, will be the star of the Vitaphone Jubilee series, through WJAS, sponsored by Warner Brothers. This broadcast will be heard at 9:30 o'clock. The star of the revue and musical comedy stage will be supported by a large orchestra, as well as vocal and instrumental soloists. One of the features of the first broadcast will be the Scene Painters Quartet, a group of male voices recruited from the paint shop of a moving picture studio.

The Ceco Couriers, a new radio feature sponsored by the Ceco Manufacturing Company, makers of Ceco radio tubes, will go on the air through WJAS at 8 o'clock. In their inaugural broadcast the Ceco Couriers present a large orchestra, male quartet, mixed quartet, vocal and instrumental soloists. The program will be opened with the Ceco theme song, sung by the full ensemble, following which Sir Edward Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" is to be given a stirring rendition by the orchestra and full ensemble. The tenor soloist has chosen as his contribution, "Ah! Moon of My Delight," and the soprano will sing "The Moon and I" from Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado."

"The Torch Dance" from Sir Edward German's incidental music to "King Henry VIII" will be played by the Trail Blazers during the Riverside Hour through KDKA at 9 o'clock. The band, directed by Harold Sanford, also will play J. Oliver Riehl's "Spirit of Progress March;" "Attaque des Ulans," by Bohm; the sextet from Donizetti's opera, "Lucia di Lammermoor," and a popular number, "The Best Things in Life Are Free," from the musical comedy, "Good News." A light number, "The Flatterer," by Mme. Chaminade, also will be included. Teresa del Riego's "Homing" will be sung by a male quartet, which will also present Austin's "The Voice of the Southland."

The bright overture to Ambroise Thomas' colorful opera, "Mignon," opens the regular weekly program by the A & P Gypsies over WCAE at 8:30 p. m. Under the direction of Gypsy King Harry Horlick, the wandering minstrels will play the prelude from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and a Tschaikowsky waltz. Other musical high lights of the program include Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 6," the familiar composition by Nevin, "The Rosary," and two other selections from the works of the great Russian composer, Peter Ilyitch Tschaikowsky.

TERMS LIBERAL CHURCH SAVIOR

The Liberal church has been the savior of Christianity, declared the Rev. Dr. Frank Edwin Smith, pastor of the North Side Unitarian church in a sermon preached yesterday.

"The Liberal church has always given us what progress we have in religion. One century burns a heretic at the stake, the next builds a monument on the spot in his honor.

"Had it ont been for the Liberal movement, we might still be worshiping the Great Spirit in the waterfalls.

"And this is the reasonableness of the Liberal church. She is not interested in a negative philosophy solely, she is interested in passing on to greater and more wholesome religious convictions.

"She seeks the truth even though it leads to the stake and to death. 'Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free,' said the world's great heretic of nineteen hundred years ago. In that spirit we carry on.

"This leads me to say that the Liberal church has been and is the savior of the Christian church."

WIND AGAIN DELAYS GIANT ZEPPELIN'S TRIAL FLIGHT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener again disappointed 50 newspapermen and photographers gathered to witness a trial flight of his dirigible Graf Zeppelin this morning when he announced a second postponement. Saturday's flight was canceled when an official flying permit failed to arrive.

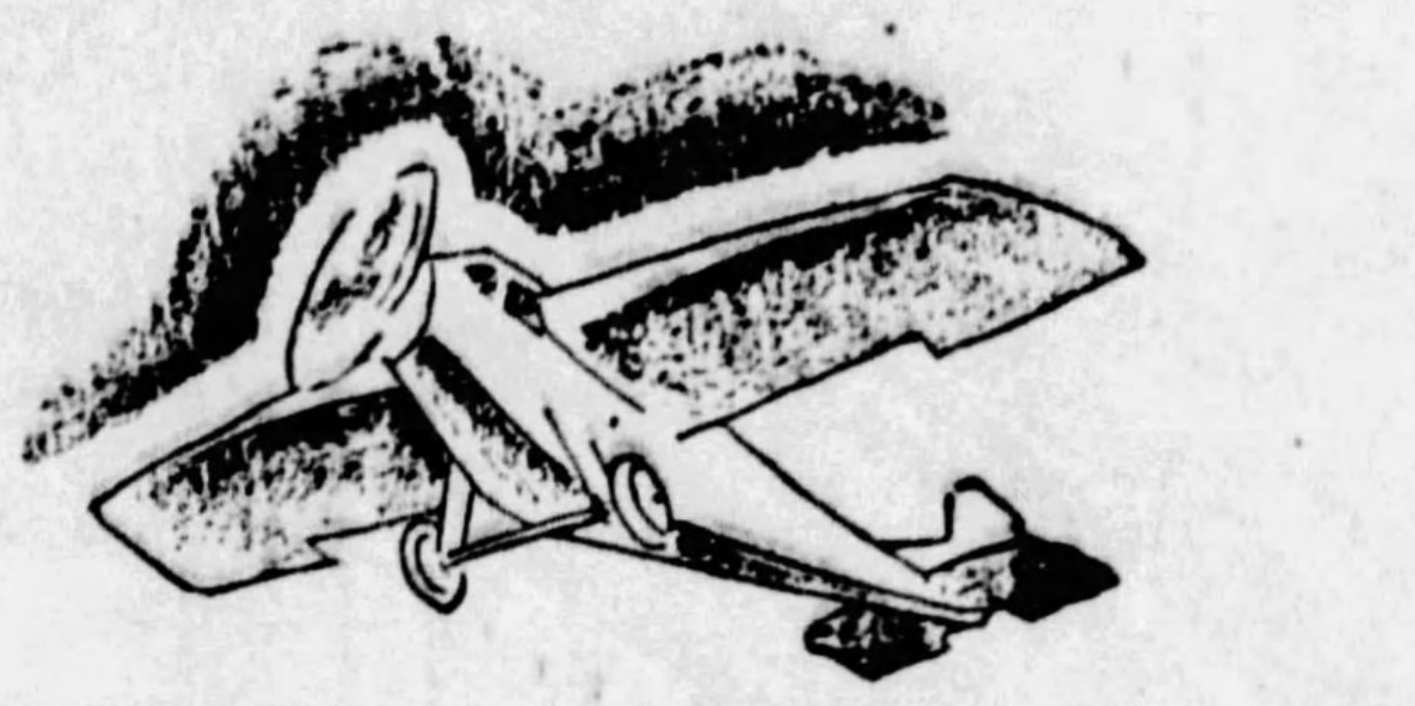
Dr. Eckener today said unfavorable winds which threatened to complicate the job of hauling the giant airship out of the hangar and certain formalities in connection with the issuance of the permit made a flight impossible.

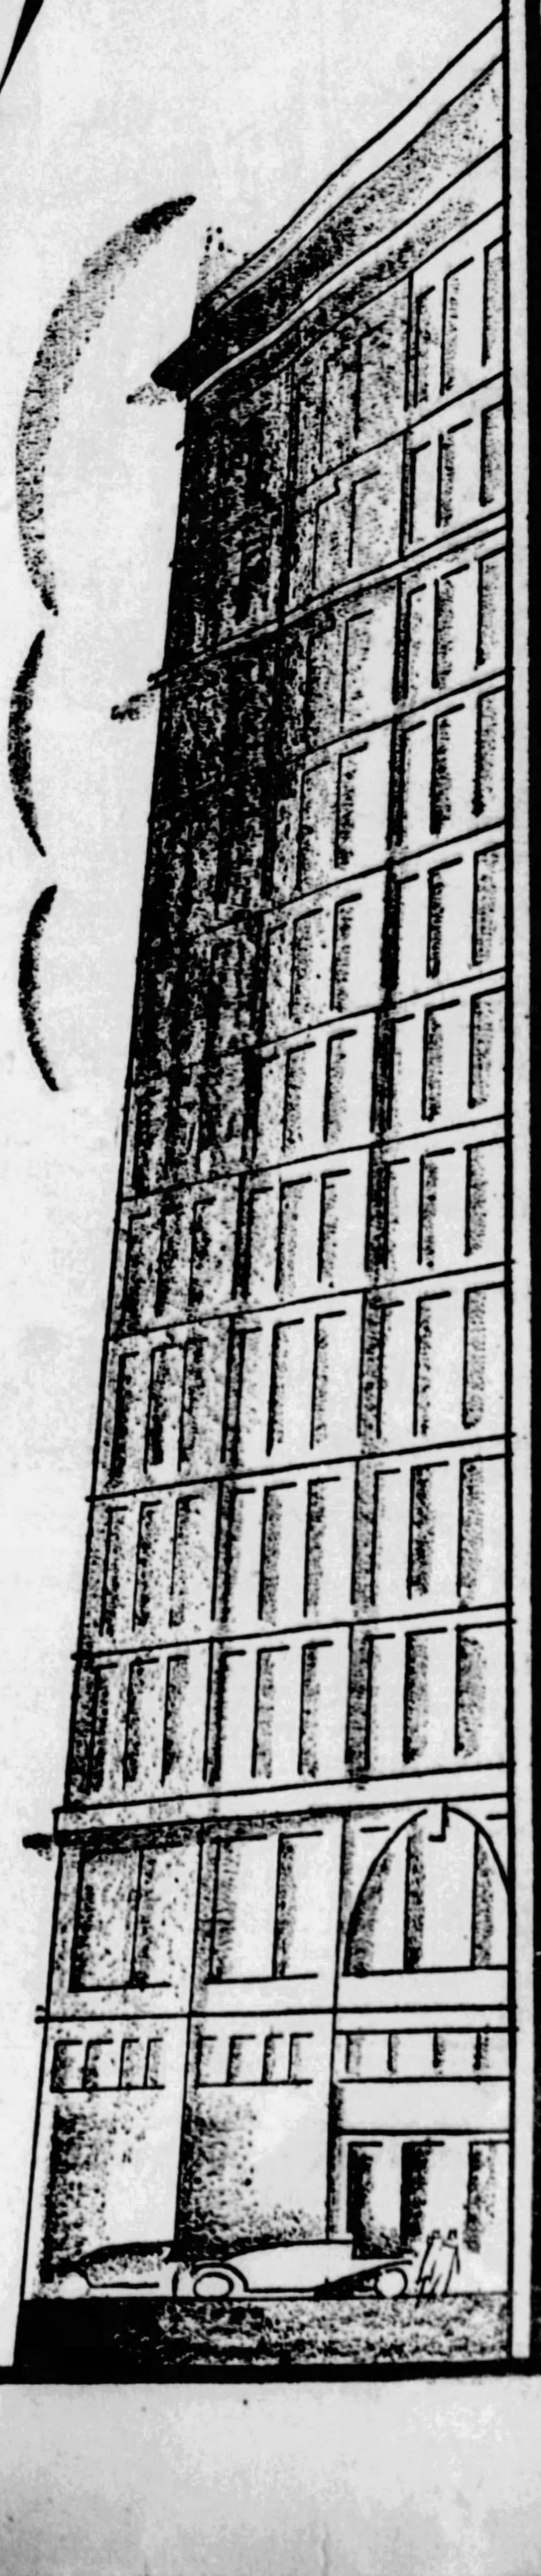
LANGDON MITCHELL TAKES DRAMA CHAIR

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Announcement of the appointment of Dr. Langdon E. Mitchell, prominent playwright, a Mask and Wig professor of playwriting in the University of Pennsylvania's department of English is made by the university. The chair in playwriting was established through a gift from the Mask and Wig Club, the university's leading dramatic organization.

ALBANIAN MOSLEMS, CATHOLICS CLASH

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The newspaper Politica says that Fear Ahmed Zogu, king of Albania, may become a Christian if his reported engagement to Princess Giovanna, of Italy, matures caused fighting between Albanian moslems and Catholics at Scutari, Albania. One Catholic priest was killed in a clash yesterday.





McCreery's . . . Modern As Flying!

The symbol of 1928 is the airplane capable of traveling over 200 miles an hour. Flying is dramatic and has captured the world's imagination. Today a nation is judged to a large extent by its standing in the world of aviation.

There are certain symbols that definitely mark a store in 1928 as modern—as worthy of this modern day! These modern symbols are . . . alertness to fashion . . . ability to get new merchandise quickly . . . providing understanding, friendly, modern salespeople . . . modernizing windows, departments and fixtures so patrons can shop swiftly in comfort! All of the traits of a modern store are surely dramatically manifested by McCreery's.

This store is not modern in a tricky, bizarre sense. It has not adopted all that is modern. It has exercised good taste and taken the best of modern ideas, equipment and merchandise. So today—McCreery's is as modern as flying! Modern in every fine sense of the word—a modern store for modern-minded people.

McCreery's
24th Anniversary
Will Demonstrate Our Modern Spirit!

Very soon McCreery's 24th Anniversary will begin. It will celebrate 24 years of successful storekeeping in a modern way by offering modern merchandise at impressively low prices.

This is Number 2 of a series of editorials leading up to McCreery's 24th Anniversary

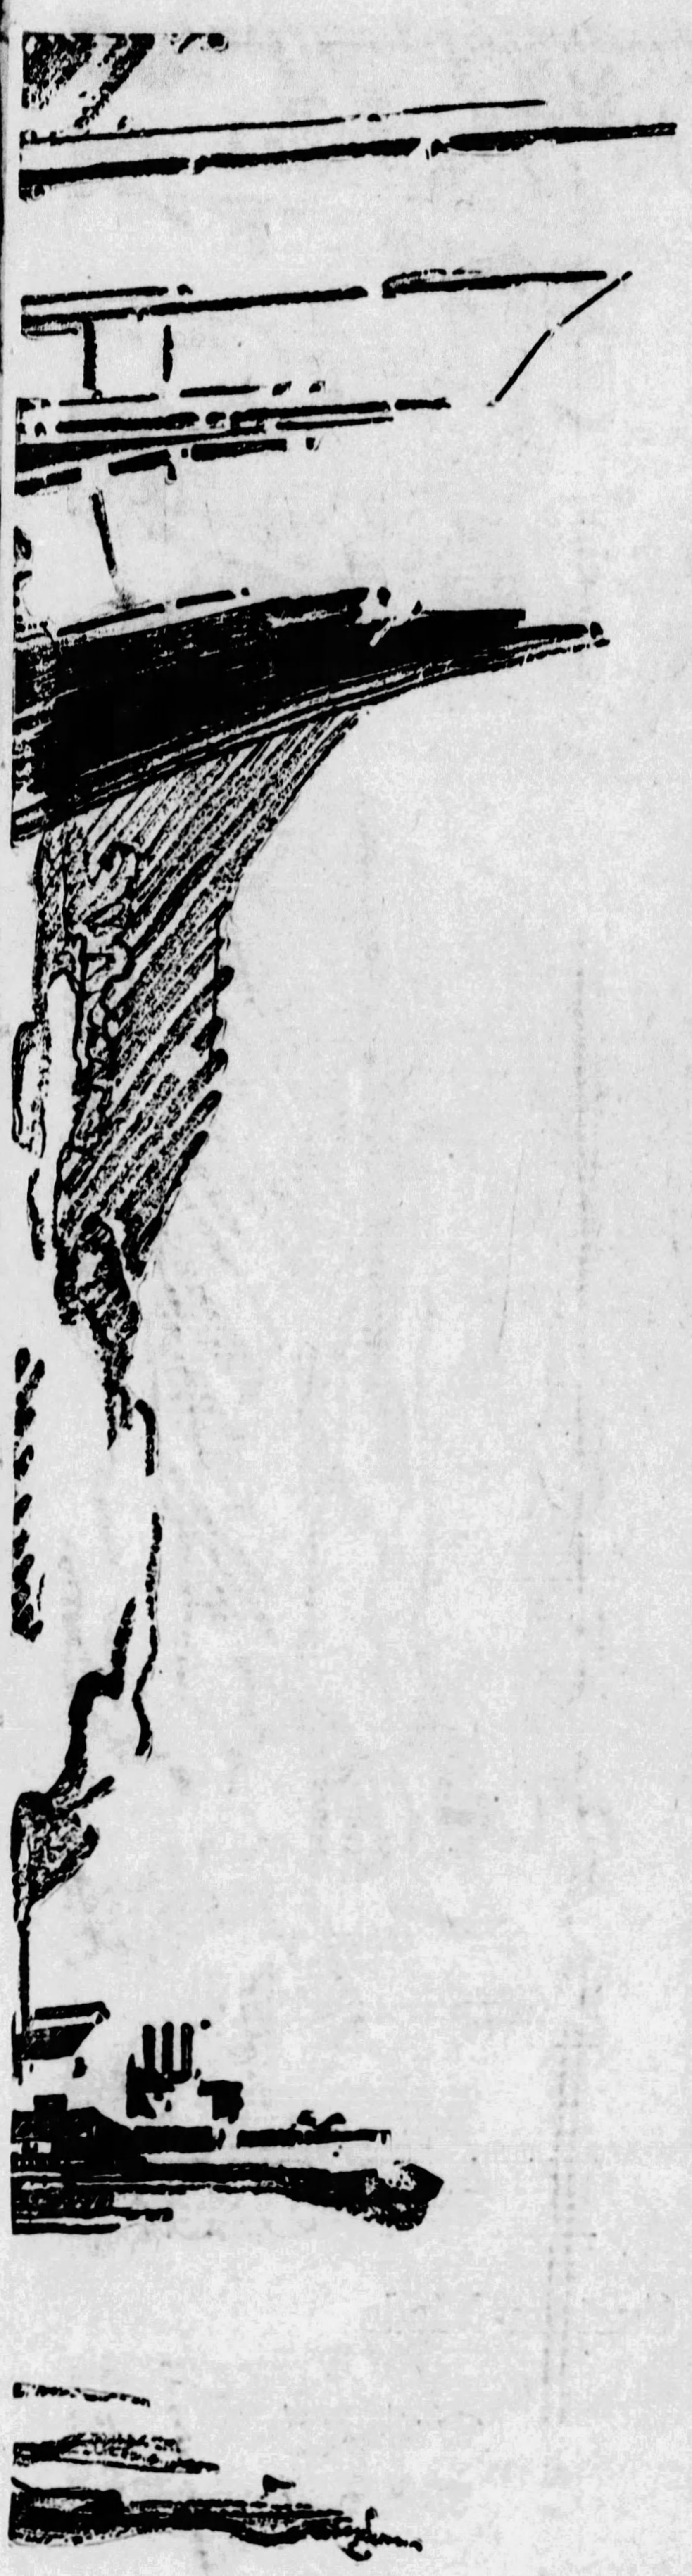
HEARST



A mighty force in the life of America

MEN build bridges and locomotives, ships and wharves, factories and warehouses—because these things serve them. All institutions are measured by their service to mankind. Steel rails and copper wires have stretched out to every nook and corner of the world, not because the railroad and the telephone are marvelous inventions, but because they give a needed and admirable service.

Of all institutions, that most closely linked with the lives of men and women, more used by them and of more value than any other, more helpful, more far-reaching in its influence, and more potent in its results, is a good newspaper.

It becomes great because its service is great, and its growth and prestige are in direct proportion to the service it renders.

For this reason, the Hearst Newspapers, which for forty-one years have devoted themselves to the interests of the public, have been the champions of the American citizen and have put his welfare and his happiness above all else, have become the greatest and most powerful newspaper organization in the world.

They comprise twenty-eight newspapers—with a circulation of over five million—and they have gained and hold their vast army of more than twenty million readers because they have never betrayed them.

MANUEL MALBRAN

Ambassador Manuel Malbran, appointed ambassador to the United States from Argentina, announced his arrival in Washington by calling upon and asking how the State Department was.

BUGS BAER Says

IT happened in Newark.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

We knew that pedestrians were becoming as influential as germs in a glass jar. But we never thought the daylight saving time would ever arrive when a jake-walker would be fined for hopping.

A Newark judge finally nailed a jake-walker in the actual act of walking.

What made it worse, the judge caught him red-shoed.

The traffic looper saw the red, white and green lights. But, nevertheless he looped across the boulevard like a rabbit through the wheat.

Six cops flattened him and in a second he was a prominent figure on the metropolitan turf.

He had disregarded the ultra-violet rays of red, purple and green lights.

His only defense was that he didn't expect to see the Aurora Borealis so far South.

Fortunately, it was not a case of grand walking beneath a sightseeing bus, nor of compound walking against the radiator of a Rolls truck.

It was simply petty walking in front of a flivver.

Nevertheless, the judge fined the curb-jumper five bills of the Republican realm.

Now, that it's happened in Newark it can happen in our town. And taking your daily lumps of yeast will not cure it.

The oligarchy of progress has finally declared itself against the diminishing tribe of bunion strutters.

There is no room in this mechanical universe for the pedestrian.

It's getting tough on the fading members of the heel-and-toe tribe. When they boil the chestnut the worm can expect to get a hot bath.

Life in big cities is precarious for the few remaining foot-scooters.

They fine us when we walk. They shoot us when we run.

Next week we will hold our indignation meeting. In the town garage.

STRAW POLL GIVES HOOVER ELECTORAL VOTE

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1928

PRESENT ESTIMATES PUT SMITH 33 SHY

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
(Noted Political Analyst.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Herbert Hoover went over the winning goal in the electoral college today in the college equivalents of the Hearst nation wide straw vote, with the added allotment of the uncanvassed states.

The vote stands:
Hoover, 298.
Smith, 233.
Necessary to choice 266.

Comparison of the electoral college indications of one week ago today with this morning's figures is appended:

	Sept. 17.	Sept. 10.
Hoover	273	262
Smith	214	219
Uncanvassed	50	39

In the list of uncanvassed states this morning are Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana and North and South Dakota. Smith is conceded Arkansas, with nine electoral votes, and Louisiana with 10, a total of 19, bringing his grand total today to 233.

DAKOTAS GIVEN G. O. P.

Hoover is arbitrarily conceded Kansas with 10 votes and the Dakotas with 10 votes, a total of 20 votes, making his grand total 298.

In the canvassed states Hoover has a gain for the week of 12 votes in North Carolina and eight in West Virginia, while Smith takes the four Idaho votes and the three Nevada votes.

In todays' tabulations, New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Connecticut are listed in the Smith column. These states, from every viewpoint, probably should be listed as doubtful, inasmuch as the margin, with the exception of Massachusetts and New Jersey, is very close.

Connecticut, however, is showing new strength for Hoover, and if the present ratio of gain is maintained for the next couple of weeks, this state, the present survey seems to show, will be switched from the Smith to the Hoover column. Hoover also is gaining in New Jersey.

Idaho is placed in the Smith column in the accompanying table because the straw vote thus far taken [illegible] governor to [illegible] classification. It is pointed out, meantime, that the vote has been confined almost entirely to three or four of the cities, while the little combing that has been done in the rural districts indicates Mr. Hoover will likely overcome the present lead of the ratio of the country supremacy is not checked.

The Idaho straw vote, nevertheless, as of this morning, is:
Smith, 464; Hoover, 424.

BORAH YET TO WORK

Senator William E. Borah, who is to take the stump shortly for the Republican ticket and is scheduled to play a stellar role in the great "campaign of education," is authority for the statement that Idaho is as safe for Hoover as Kansas, regardless of what the temporary trend of the larger cities indicate.

In this connection, Mr. Hoover shows surprising strength in the strictly rural districts of Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and South Dakota. The first canvass in spots that are wholly agricultural in all four states put him way out in front, in some places 4 to 1.

One farming community in Nebraska gives Hoover 156 to 64 for Smith. A similar locality in Kansas rolls up 235 for Hoover to 56 for Smith.

Iowa, the first straws show, is going to remain moored to the G. O. P. wharf with almost the traditional party strength. While there is a slight slump in spots the general survey today indicates that they will be inconsequential in the statewide totals. One representative spot out where the tall corn grows gives Hoover 584 to 241 for Smith.

The first farming community in South Dakota to be canvassed shows 149 for Hoover to 83 for Smith.

By next Monday morning it is hoped to have a fairly representative vote from all four of these states.

MINNESOTA UPSET

While the scouts report a healthy Smith sentiment in Minnesota, as duly chronicled in last Saturday's piece, a late report from the twin cities just received is to the effect that Senator Henrik Shipstead, who [illegible]ing [illegible]ection the Farmer-Labor ticket, is in trouble, with the present indication that he may be beaten.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler also is reported encountering tough going in Montana, despite the fact that he was the late Senator La Follette's running mate four years ago. Former Governor and former United States Senator Joseph Dixon, who managed the Bull Moose campaign for Theodore Roosevelt in 1912, is opposing Wheeler this trip. While Wheeler's strength is not underestimated, Dixon has given his "honest to God" opinion to Dr. Work, chairman of the Republican National Committee, that he is going to whip Wheeler "good and plenty."

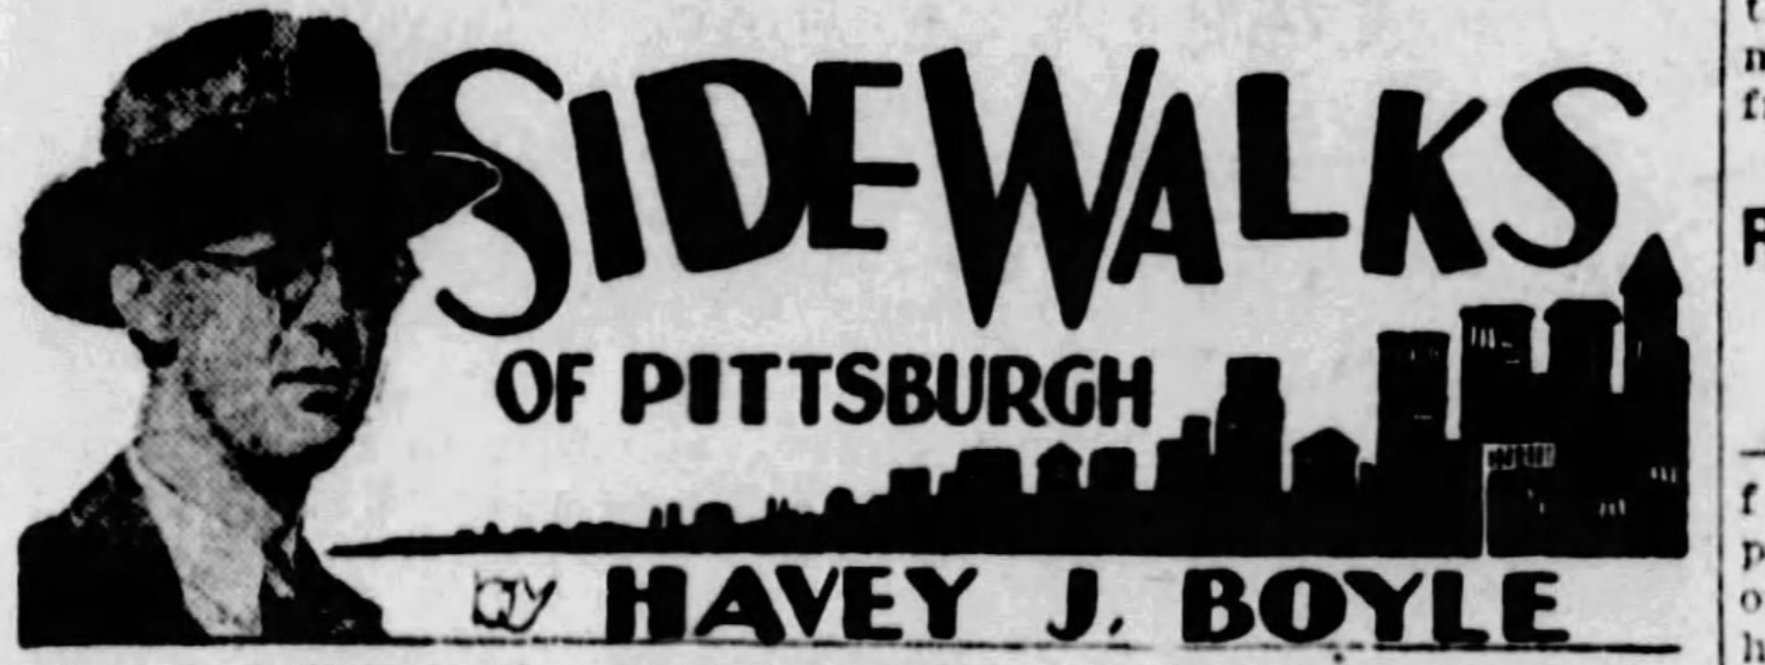
4 DIE, 3 HURT IN AIR CRASHES

OLEAN, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Earl Miller, of Olean, was killed, and Kenneth M. Guinnip, 33, a student pilot, was seriously injured when their plane crashed into the top of a tree on the bank of the Allegheny River, near the West River road, about a mile east of Olean, last evening.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Lieut. Charles P. Wells, of Denver, pilot, was killed, and John T. Long, Bogalusa, La., was probably fatally injured, when their plane went into a head spin while from the ground and crashed on the Municipal landing field here.

FLINT, Mich., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Two passengers were killed and the pilot seriously injured, when an airplane went intoa head spin while attempting a landing here, and fell from an altitude of about 200 feet. The dead yere Donald Gary, 18, and Harold George Braham, 24, both of Flint.

William Warrick, 24, of Flint, the pilot, was taken to a hospital, suffering internal injuries.



AN EXPERIENCE out of the usual was had with a visit to the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia. Making the visit more attractive was the presence in our party of Judge John Fine, of Luzerne county, who is the youngest judge in the state.

Judge Fine had sentenced a convicted murderer to the Eastern Penitentiary for life, and the day we visited the institution the Judge was curious to interrogate the man he had sent up. The Judge was curious because when he sentenced the man to life imprisonment the man had begged for the chair. Judge Fine wondered if he still felt the same way about it, now, a year or so after his sentence had begun.

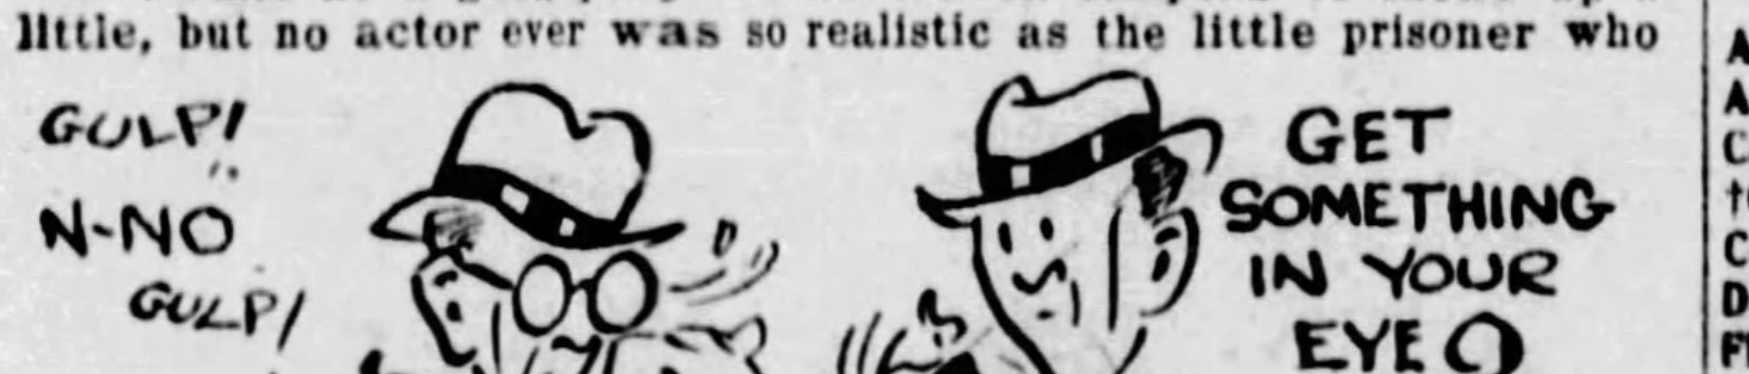
WE HAVE seen not a few dramas on the stage, and once in awhile at a good play we have been tempted to choke up a little, but no actor ever was so realistic as the little prisoner who came up to meet the judge who had sentenced him, and none prompted better a welling of the throat.



GULP!
N-NO
GULP!
GET SOMETHING IN YOUR EYE?

A shy little fellow, about 40, with a world of melancholy and hopelessness in the expression of his eyes. How he had ever got up the nerve to kill a man was beyond understanding, once you saw him.

"DO you still prefer the chair to life imprisonment?" asked Judge Fine.

In a low tone, the prisoner, nervously twisting the jacket of his coat, said: "Yes, Judge."

There was a silence. Then the prisoner spoke up.

"You see, judge," he almost begged, "Life, judge, that is so long to stay in prison. It would be better to be dead."

"But you have it nice here. They treat you well," said the judge.

"Ah, yes, I am treated well, but oh it is so long to think about. Life, a whole lifetime here, judge. Maybe some day you might help me to get out, judge, maybe?"

The judge could not, of course, answer that. And the prisoner, noting this, closed his eyes as if to resist the shock of getting no help.

He was the first lifer we had ever seen at close range and what a picture of remorse and despair he represented.

IN spite of this particularly tragic picture, however, we were surprised that in a penitentiary there can be as much buoyancy among the prisoners as we witnessed.

Mexicans Free American After Getting Ransom

ENGINEER ON WAY HOME

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. E. J. Bumstead, wife of a Los Angeles mining engineer who has been held captive by Mexican bandits demanding a 20,000 pesos ransom, received a telegram early today advising her that her husband had been released and was en route home. The message said the release was secured by payment of the ransom.

The telegram read in part:

"Released. Am on my way to Ixtlan. Feel fine but tired."

Mrs. Bumstead, who has been near collapse since her husband was reported kidnaped by the bandits, was overcome when she received the news. Half of the ransom, it was said, was paid early this month, and the remainder turned over yesterday.

The engineer was captured August 25 near Ixtlan, in the state of Nayarit, where he had gone to manage a mine.

STEAL SAFE WITH $500

A 600-pound safe was carried from Fishel's restaurant, at 5542 Penn avenue, early yesterday by thieves who broke in the rear door. The safe containing $500, was hauled away in an automobile, detectives said.

G. L. Flanagan, of 6942 Edgarton avenue, was held up by two Negroes early yesterday and robbed of $60 at Fifth avenue and Halket street, according to police.

Returning home from a vacation, R. York, of 3780 Ridgeway street, discovered the theft of $100 worth of clothing.

2 CANDIDATES QUIT RACE

HARRISBURG, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Two withdrawals of nominees from the general election ballot were received by the state election bureau today, the last day authorized by law for withdrawing.

Withdrawal papers were filed by William H. Taylor, of Irwin, Democratic nominee for congress from the Thirty-first district, Westmoreland county, and Charles Leventry, Johnstown, R. D. 3, Prohibition candidate for the state senate from the Thirty-fifth senatorial district, Cambria county.

COAL MINERS TO FIGHT TO SAVE LOCAL HALLS

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Sept. 17.—The Save the Union forces in the Eastern Ohio coal field will fight the efforts of the national organization of the United Mine Workers to oust their locals from halls which the locals built. This was indicated today when five members of the Powhatan local filed a motion to dismiss an injunction obtained by the district union preventing the members of the Powhatan local from using the property involved.

REPAIRING CAR, KILLED BY FUMES IN GARAGE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Virgil J. Taylor, 60, was found dead of monoxide gas poisoning in a garage in the rear of his home yesterday. Mr. Taylor had gone to the garage to repair the car. Two hours later Alfred John, passing by the garage, heard the motor of the car running and entering found Mr. Taylor dead.

SHOOTING HIKER

LOVEDA BOYLE

Today Loveda Boyle, 18-year-old Oil City (Pa.) divorcee, is in Venango county jail, Franklin, Pa., awaiting execution of extradition papers that will send her back to Ohio to face second degree murder charges in the fatal shooting of Robert McCormick, 31, Akron automobile salesman, who "gave her a lift" while she was hitch-hiking home from Oklahoma. The girl maintains her original story of improper advances by McCormick and "another man," despite her warnings.

FLAGS FLOWN HERE TO MARK CONSTITUTION DAY

Flags were flown and appropriate exercises held in Pittsburgh today in honor of the one hundred and forty-first anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution.

Constitution Day was observed in all of the public schools with short programs. Various aspects of the nation's organic law were considered in the history and civics classes.

The Constitution was framed in Philadelphia in 1787 by a convention called because of the failure of the Articles of Confederation to provide an effective national government. It was adopted and signed September 17, 1787, by representatives of all the 13 original states except Rhode Island, and by August, 1788, it had been ratified by 11 states and put into effect. The first ten amendments, known as the Bill of Rights, were ratified between November 20, 1789, and December 15, 1791.

BLACKHAND THREATS JOKE, POLICE BELIEVE

Practical jokers are believed responsible for the "Black Hand" notes sent to Casper Jockel and Noel T. Thompson, of the Troy Hill Motor Service, 1418 Gardner street, Troy Hill. Police relaxed their vigil today after watching the garage and homes of both men for almost a week. Identical notes threatening death were sent to both men and police set a trap to catch the "black handers" who demanded $500, but nobody appeared.

PHYLLIS STEWART

Today Phyllis Stewart, school teacher, Lamere, eight miles northwest of Walthill, Neb., lies in a hospital with a crushed chest and she may pay with her life for her Spartan heroism while the tornado twisted through that area. Louder and louder as the storm gained in intensity, Teacher Phyllis Stewart recklessly played the little school's piano, holding the interest of her youngsters with every pianoforte she knew with all the fervor she had. They stayed in school and folks there say she saved their lives.

At Tampa the wind was blowing 26 miles per hour from the northwest at 8 a. m., and at Jacksonville, 30 miles from the east.

Elsewhere over the country the weather is clear, generally, under the influence of high pressure which covers most of the interior with its center over the Dakotas and Nebraska. The highest barometer is 30.40 inches at several stations near the center of the high.

Norman Asks Bea to Marry Him After Questioning Her About Her Past

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

On his first day in Manor Park, where he is to apply the business methods learned in college, Benjamin Carrington Black has occasion to observe three of the suburban town's most alluring examples of femininity. Unnoticed by men, he sees Diana Rand—nineteen and pretty, enter a jewelry store with her friend, Beatrice Sheldon, whose trailing dress is reminiscent of the Gay Nineties. In the store Diana and Bea encounter Ann Evarts, a trim, petite person. Ann in Diana's roadster sees Noddy and Toddy and Norman Gregory and leaves Diana and Beatrice to join them. Bea is furious as she and Diana drive away. She is madly in love with Gregory. Norman hears about Benny being in Manor Park and looks him up. He locates him and invites him to a party at the Yacht Club. He consents to go. Bea and her brother, Freddie, prepare for the party and before leaving their parents warn them to behave like "Sheldons." Freddie calls for Ann, whose mother had just told her she must marry soon or go to work. Diana and her friends meet Benny at the party. It is a gay affair, with Diana being the life of it. Benny is fascinated by the quiet Ann, who makes believe that she does not like "wild" parties. Diana, after the party, tells her mother all about Benny. She meets him several times and falls in love with him. Mrs. Evarts is anxious that her daughter, Ann, fall in love with Benny. However, he is afraid he is falling in love with Diana. Ann tells Norman that Beatrice has a past.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"OH, it's cruel—cruel! I c-can't help it b-cause I'm a-afraid. D-dear Diana d-doesn't care for a-anything and she just l-laughs at p-poor little m-me——"

He put his arm around the shivering little figure, whispering: "Sh! It's all right—it's all right." He wished to laugh but did not dare. After all, Diana needn't have made fun of the girl's fright. This gentle creature—why, it was cruel to hurt her so! And with this thought his arm tightened a bit, while Ann cuddled closer, pressing her nose against his coat.

Hanna sent the boys away and gathered the girls into the bungalow, taking no risk of a let-down to this unexpected and pleasing turn of affairs. She made a great show of going about the rooms, "tucking in my girlies," and was surprised that Ann refused her a moment's gloating.

"Go away, mother! Give me a little peace, can't you? I'll take care of my end of this if you'll watch that Rand snip. Go on, now! I want to sleep."

But Ann did not sleep—not at once. No sooner had the door closed on her mother and the lights in the lounge snapped out than she was on her feet and into her clothes. Moving swiftly and without noise, she lifted the screen from the window and stepped upon the veranda, running in the shadow along the side of the house toward the lake. There a figure came to meet her—reached out and folded her close.

They found a sheltered place between some rocks and a pair of cigarets were lighted before she spoke.

"Going to be deadly, Freddie—sitting around listening to those ukes all day. O Lord!"

He chuckled. "Never mind the days, old baby—think of the nights! Here—brought you a snifter. This ain't so worse, is it?"

She drank and breathed deeply, flinging her arms about his neck.

Nor was Ann the only one in the bungalow who refused slumber. Diana, too, waited for the light to go out, the click of Hanna's door.

Then she drew a chair to the window, put her elbows on the sill and her chin in her hands and fixed her eyes—more wistful than frank they were now—upon the bungalow across the way. Upon a light burning in the living room a shadow crossed the pulled down shade; Benny Black's shadow.

"Darn!" she murmured, "Darn!"

And presently one stole over the lawn, stepped withina foot of her, whispered tensely: "Di? I've got to see her. Important—you understand? I'll wait here."

Without answering, Diana crossed to the farther of the twin beds and softly awakened the girl who slept there. She found shoes and stockings, assisted the bewildered Beatrice to dress—finally sent her through the window to Norman.

CHAPTER XIII.

NORMAN seemed aloof and cold, almost estranged, standing there in the dark, and Beatrice shivered. She had expected his arms about her, his lips on her hair, her eyes—not his voice saying in a dull way, "I've got to know about this. There's been someone else, Bea? Someone with a nearer claim than mine? That is the reason you wouldn't marry me? Tell me this. You've no right to hold back the truth."

Her lips were little husks and they would not move. She lifted a hand, dropped it hopelessly with a pathetic little gesture.

He moved impatiently, half turned away, came close to her, shaking with rage. "It is true, then! You kept this to yourself—let me think what I pleased. Oh, my God!"

Far away in some dim corner of the girl's mind a voice kept wailing, "He is lost—he is lost! This is the end." Her eyes were hot and dry, but now she could speak with the calm of utter misery.

"Norman—oh, it's true enough. You think I haven't known this would come—lived through it a hundred times, night after night. Sick with dread—its been worse even than this, worse than knowing it was over at last. . . .

"You'll hear me now. That much is due me because I love you. Yes! never anyone but you. . . . You must believe this . . . . Now I want to die; nothing to live for.

"You know Freddie and me, how things are with us. Watched like a couple of criminals, always suspected of the worst. Norman, it isn't bad folks who make others bad; it's the good ones, the holier than thou ones, who destroy. A little understanding—a kind word—well, you get desperate without those, ever. Dian, with her father and mother like pals—it couldn't have happened to her. Don't you see this, Norman? Can't you see this?

She sank down, put her head in her hands, began to sob.

The boy pacing back and forth, back and forth, stopped finally and looked at her, chin dropped, fists at his sides. He demanded sharply: "You didn't care for this—this— You don't care now?"

"Care!" she cried. "I've never cared for anyone but you! You must understand this. Care!" Her voice was blurred, and he went on pacing back and forth, back and forth.

It was a great while later that he moved toward her slowly, crouched down, taking her in his arms. "Beatrice—will you marry me, dear? Now? Tomorrow?"

She jerked upright, raising a swollen, tear-stained face, and even in the dusk he could see the stark unbelief in her eyes. "You say—I don't understand"——

He told her again, very gently, "I want you to marry me, Beatrice."

She thought he was rambling and he had to say over and over that he wished her to be his wife. What was past was past; they would forget. A future ahead—that was what mattered. He loved her—would give his life to making her happy.

She was humble, dazed with it all, beside herself with gratitude. Norman," she whispered, "oh, Norman!"

He took her back to the bungalow, helped her through the window, and she sank to her knees before Diana, weeping, trembling, when she told of this happiness which had come.

"It will be tomorrow," she said. "You will go with us and we'll get a license and find a justice or someone. Di—you think he means it? You don't believe—"

Diana laughed and kissed her and said of course he meant it. "Why shoudn't he? Few girls as sweet as you, Bea. And you'll be happy. I'm sure of that."

But she was not sure. To have love come under a cloud—sad, that was. And the end was not yet. Poor Bea!

They were not married the next day. An air of intrigue, currents and cross-currents of tension had stolen through the camp, and Hanna, obeying some instinct, was watchful. The three conspirators knew she would put a stop to proceedings if she were to get wind of their plans and, upon Diana's advice, the trip to the nearest town was postponed.

And now, in spite of the joy which had come to Beatrice, she struggled with a sense of insecurity. Always Norman's eyes were upon her, slightly accusatory eyes, intensely alert to any small attention paid her by Noddy or Toddy or Benny Black.

"Is he jealous?" the girl asked herself. "Is he always to be this way? Could I stand it if he were to lose all faith? A mistake so long ago, a little, wretched minute of wavering—must I pay as long as I live?"

Yet she was so humble, so overwhelmed by her new happiness, that she would forget Norman's strangeness even in the very face of it. Beatrice, who had thought to clutch at life, to steal the rapture of it, now asked little—no more than a chance to give her every heartbeat to loyalty.

It was more than a half mile across the lake to the mountain, and that afternoon Diana set out to swim it, cheered ahead by the others who remained safely near shore. In spite of his disapproval of the manner in which she had held Ann up to ridicule the previous evening, and in spite of Ann's valiant efforts to isolate him, Benny had spent most of this second day at Diana's side, lured by her boundless good nature and also, perhaps, by the fact that all activity seemed to revolve about her small self.

THERE she sits—as demure and old-fashioned as one's heart could desire. Everybody looks pridefully at her with her hair primly parted and drawn back into a neat knot at the back of her head. Her tight little bodice with its Victorian ruffle and the miles and miles of flounces sweeping 'round her ankles. "Isn't she lovely? Don't ever tell me that the old-fashioned styles are passe!" And then a gasp—

For little Miss Old-Fashioned rises for the dancing and oh, look! She's not so old-fashioned, after all. For the flounces that when she was sitting down seemed to hide her tiny feet and—ahem!—limbs, don't at all. True, they sweep the floor in the back, but, oh, in the front! They're right up to her knees. That's what I call bring old-fashionedness right up-to-date. But she's just as bewitching, just as modest, just as anxious for Love as the great-grandmother who inspired her gown, and I'm for her every minute!

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" By Adele Garrison

Lillian Prepares Madge for the Interview With Veritzen

I WAS thankful that Lillian betook herself to the telephone as she uttered her gibing little assurance that she would assume the responsibility for summoning Philip Veritzen and thus insure Dicky's amiability. She could not see my flaming face, at which I raged, but which I could not camouflage. I do not know why any conjunction of my husband's name with that of my employer should so annoy me, unless it is my knowledge of Dicky's illy-concealed jealousy of the famous theatrical producer. But I never am able to conceal my embarrassment, especially when Lillian pointedly alludes to Dicky's behavior, which she misses no opportunity of doing.

By the time she returned from the telephone, however, I had myself well in hand.

"He's coming right over," she announced. "I think he has some idea that the sheriff is after me, or something of the sort. How relieved he'll be when he finds that a younger and fairer dame wishes him to play the knight errant."

It was impossible to dodge her meaning, but I had made good use of the minute she had been absent and I looked at her with no shadow of embarrassment.

"If by that speech you mean that you expect me to interview the gentleman, you have a disappointment coming to you."

"Oh, say not so!" she chanted. "You have a kind face, live up to it." Then, like a flash, she dropped her bantering manner.

"My dear," she said, "this is no time for quibbling. You are the only one who can judge how much you should tell Philip Veritzen concerning Princess Olina's affairs, for you are the only person who has been given her confidence. I'll go down with you and do the preliminary explaining that I do not require his services. Then I'll betake myself to the veranda. If you need me, you can send out distress signals."

I made no further objection to her plan, first because I saw the soundness of her reasoning, and second, because I suddenly remembered a day when Philip Veritzen had come to the farmhouse to ask my good offices with Dicky, that he might abandon his design of sketching Eleanor Lincoln for a series of book illustrations. At that time he had referred to a strange story which he wished to tell me, but which he was afraid Lillian might find mirthful.

The conviction suddenly came to me that in some way this story was intertwined with the startling tale which I had just heard from the lips of the young mistress of The Larches. If Philip Veritzen had the opportunity to talk to me without auditors, he might think it a propitious time to relate the tale which I frankly admitted to myself I was avidly curious to hear.

It was but a few minutes later that the sound of a motor horn signaled the great producer's arrival.

"He sure burned up the roads getting here," Lillian commented as we went down the stairs. "He couldn't have done any better if he'd known it was you whose summons he really was obeying."

"In your own jargon, will you kindly 'can the comedy'?" I adjured her closely, and with a hurried, "Sorry, old dear. I'll be as solemn as a hanging judge," she gave me an affectionate pat on the shoulder, and went past me to the veranda steps which Mr. Veritzen was just ascending.

My employer's face was grave and his eyes were concerned as she opened the door.

"My dear Lillian," he said, "what has happened to you? I could not get your explanation over the telephone—"

"There was a good reason for that," she interrupted briskly, "for I made none. Come into the library, Phil, and I'll explain in words of one syllable."

She slipped one hand into the bend of his arm, the other through mine, and led us down the hall, into the library.

Old Age No Longer a Bugaboo to Man

A FEW weeks back I attended a very interesting picnic. It was the annual meeting of "The Three-Quarter Century Club," of my native county. Unfortunately, there was a terrific rain and windstorm, but in spite of the weather about 200 persons assembled.

DR. COPELAND

Enrolled in that club are between four and five hundred members, each one 75 or older. The honorary president is 98. My father, a young man of 90, is the president.

My old friend, Dr. John H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, was one of the speakers. He spoke of the evils of meat eating and of tobacco. The honorary president shares Dr. Kellogg's horror of tobacco and urged me to tell my readers about a man "who lived to be 98 and never used the vile and health-destroying weed."

Of course I was frankly puzzled when I looked about only to see a lot of those hardy old pioneers puffing at big black cigars. They acted to me as if that was their daily habit, but perhaps the old folks were out on a bit of a lark.

Old age is a state of mind. I have met lots of grouchy, grumbling men of 35 or 40, who are really old. They act old and feel old and are old.

On the contrary, there are plenty of men and women, well past 80 who are cheerful and hopeful, looking on the bright side of life. They are really young.

Every person of advanced years has a theory to account for continued survival. There must be many factors. Each of them has its place.

One important factor is cleanliness. I don't mean by this merely what soap and water will do for you. It must be assumed that everybody is clean in person and clothing. I refer to a more important cleanliness—internal cleanliness.

Nobody can be clean inside if he has diseased tonsils or teeth, pouring filfth into the system. Nobody can be clean who has an overloaded intestine, filled with fermenting material. Uncleanness from either one of these causes must undermine health and shorten life.

Get rid of all centers of pus formation or germ breeding. Take into your system food and drink that are clean and pure and nourishing. Then you may hope to live to join the Three-Quarter Century Club.

Answers to Health Queries

L. M. R. O.—What is the spitting of blood indicative of? Could it be due to anything other than T. B.?

A.—Might be due to a severe catarrhal condition, a polypus or some lung affection. I would suggest that you have your doctor examine you.

A. D. Q.—What can be done for small red veins on the limbs which show very prominently on the surface of the skin? Can they be made less noticeable by the use of electricity?

A.—This may be merely due to the fact that the skin is thin and delicate in texture and the veins are more or less prominent on this account. Are you on your feet a great deal? This causes a greater tension of the blood through the veins and might make them appear more noticeable. You might have your doctor advise you about the treatment you have in mind.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE—AND OTHER TRIFLES

BY THE time she is fifty, the modern girl should have collected enough old wedding rings for all her grandchildren to cut their teeth on.

* * *

Many a marriage has successfully withstood the undertow of poverty for years, and then gone to smash on a "wave of prosperity." The minute a man gets rich enough to change his coat for dinner, he seems to want to change his affections, along with it.

HELEN ROWLAND

Nowadays, few men want to be bothered with any "overture" to love, and they are even more impatient toward any "encores."

A "sensible marriage" is usually the patch by which a girl hides the scars left on her heart, or her vanity, when her big romance goes to smash.

When a man promises to "give up" anything, from a weakness to a woman, somehow it suddenly becomes so attractive to him, that he begins to take a new and violent interest in it.

Take care of your husband's pennies, and some beautiful blonde will take care of his dollars.

Women are funny. A lot of money will make almost any man look like Prince Charming to one sort of girl. And to another sort, there is something positively irresistible about a poetic looking "clinging vine," who lets her settle the dinner check and borrows her cigarets.

The woman for whom a man is always looking hopefully is the one to whom he can promise everything—because she expects absolutely nothing.

After forty-five, most of a woman's "It" lies in her bank book, and many a man mistakes his car for his sex-appeal.

BECAUSE SHE APPRECIATED THE SECURITY OF A HOME AND A HUSBAND MORE THAN SHELTERED GIRLS, SHE WAS A PERFECT WIFE AND MOTHER
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

IT WAS a great shock to the conservative friends of a certain young man when he returned home with an "actress wife!"

It will never last, was the verdict. She was just a clever, wise, worldly girl, who had trapped him!

But the marriage was not only a success—it is an inspiration.

She appreciated her home and husband much more than the sheltered girls who had never been without the background of home and family!

Any who thought—and there were some—that she would listen to flattery or temptation, were fooled. She had had too much of that and knew men.

Instead of contaminating the community, her worldly advice in the case of several foolish young matrons saved them from making grave mistakes.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Girl Who Couldn't Be Scared

By EDITH BROWN

"I HAVE never been afraid of anything in my life," Alicia Garland boasted proudly, as she swayed the net hammock, hung in a shady spot under the elms, back and forth with the tips of her toes. "I'm not afraid of bugs and caterpillars like most girls. I don't scream when I see a mouse."

"All the same I bet you could be scared," Ted Ramsay declared.

Alicia shook her golden ringlets in negation.

"No; I don't think so," she said thoughtfully. "I never think about anything's hurting me, and if it should, well, it's done then, and my being afraid wouldn't have kept it from hurting me."

"That is wonderful logic," Ted agreed, flicking the ash from his cigaret, "but fear knows no logic."

"Look here, Alicia," he added, his face brightening with a sudden idea. "Will you go with me to the doctor's haunted-office tonight at dusk, enter it alone, and bring out one of the bones!—that would prove conclusively that you knew no fear."

"Agreed," Alicia answered, snapping up his proposition.

About a mile from the Lewis country home, at which Alicia and Ted were attending a house party, was a deserted farmhouse, in which an old doctor had lived. In the yard was a one-story building which had served as his office, in which he kept a skeleton and various portions of the human anatomy. The colored people and a number of the whites in the neighborhood said the old office was "haunted" by the doctor's uneasy spirit.

In spite of the jocular warnings of the rest of the crowd, that night at sunset Ted and Alicia set out on their adventure.

"Do you guess my hair will have turned white by the time we return?" Alicia mocked.

"Perhaps you will never return," said Ted in a sepuchral voice. "An hour from now you may be hanging by your hair to a nail in the doctor's office."

"And what of you, mister?"

"Oh! I intend to run when the ghost grabs you. This is a test of your bravery—not mine."

They made their way through tangled weeds and briers to the door of the haunted office in a much more serious mood than they had traversed the road. They tried the battered old door. It was securely locked and also nailed up. Then they walked around the building to see if they could find a place of ingress, and Alicia managed to keep on the same side of the house with Ted. They noted that the shutter of one window about eight feet from the ground seemed to be a little ajar. It hung in a dejected manner with several slats missing.

"Do you still want to go in, Alicia?" Ted queried.

"Of —— of course," Alicia replied rather weakly.

"Well; we'll have to get a ladder then."

"Let's look in one of those sheds at the barn; maybe we can find a ladder."

Ted turned on his flashlight. Dust and decay and mold, but no ladder. They tried the door to an adjoining shed, and this time they were more fortunate. They found a ladder leading up to the hay loft above, which Ted dislocated without much trouble. He carried it out of the shed, swinging it jauntily at his side.

Alicia was careful to get by Ted's side, on which he was not carrying the ladder. The darkness pressed closer, and Ted, for some reason, perhaps economy, did not use his flashlight. Alicia would not for worlds have suggested that he put it on.

After some walking around through weeds and debris, which several times nearly tripped them, and after some searching, they again located the window with the shutter ajar.

Ted placed the ladder with its prongs against the window sill.

"Shall I go up first and see if it's all right to go in?" he asked, his tone half bantering, half serious.

"No; I'll go up first myself," Alicia declared stoutly.

Resolutely she put one foot on the ladder, then the other, steadied herself, went up another rung, another, yet another. Now her waist was exactly in line with the window. It was darker than she had ever seen it before. Slowly but steadily she extended her hand, wrenched at the blind.

There was a scraping, tearing sound, then a cloud of choking, blinding substance, and something plunged towards her. She ducked her head and fell backwards down the ladder into Ted's arms.

When they came to themselves they were standing about six feet from the window, clasping each other tightly.

"What in the world was that?" Alicia asked.

"What in the world was it?" Ted demanded.

He drew his flashlight from his pocket, snapped it on, and, arm in arm, he and Alicia approached gingerly the scene from which they had fled.

There at the foot of the ladder lay a huge dirt-daubers' nest, its disturbed inhabitants crawling sadly over it.

On the way home Ted said laughingly to Alicia, "Now, my dear little girl, please admit that for once in your life you were scared."

Alicia grinned. "I was," she admitted. "But I wasn't scared when the dirt-daubers' nest fell. I simply ducked my head as a protective measure, but I was scared for one minute after you caught me that you were not going to hug me."

"In that case, Alicia," Ted said sweetly, "you need never be scared again."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Gave These Women Strength

Woodleaf, N. C.—"I was nervous and suffered most of the time and sometimes I would have to go to bed. My sister told me she was in the same condition and how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. After taking the first bottle I found I was stronger than I was before. Now I have taken three bottles, I can do my housework and most every other kind of work that I want to do. I will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to anyone. I will answer all mail received asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Rosa Swicegood, R. 1, Woodleaf, N. C.

Benefited Beyond Expression

Jacksonville, Fla.—"I read an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have been taking it now for four years and find it a wonderful medicine for weak, run-down women. I do my own housework and work in an office besides and I would get cross and irritable and too sick to work. I have benefited beyond expression by the Vegetable Compound and will gladly answer letters from anyone who is suffering and needs help."—Mrs. Rose Morris, 2149 Walnut St., Jacksonville, Florida.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Pirates Help Cardinals by Beating Giants—Fussell Only Pitcher to Defeat Benton Twice—Jones Without Equal in Golf History—International League Race Still Sizzles—New Bucs Good Prospects.

THE PIRATES did their old manager, Bill McKechnie, a good turn yesterday, when, thanks to the shut-out pitching of Fred Fussell, they succeeded in beating the Giants on one run and three hits, handing Larry Benton his seventh defeat of the season, and breaking New York's winning streak of nine straight games.

Fred Fussell

By downing the McGrawites while the Cardinals were idle, the Bucs added half a game to the pennant lead of the St. Louis club. The Redbirds now lead by two full box scores, so that if they win seven of their remaining 13 contests the Giants will have to win 10 out of 13 to beat them out.

FUSSELL, who had lost four out of six straight games prior to yesterday, is the only pitcher in the National League who has beaten Benton twice this season. He won his first decision over the Giant star when he entered the game of July 7 as a relief hurler and won out, 8 to 6. Incidentally, the southpaw has given Burleigh Grimes a chance to beat Benton to the goal of 25 victories. Each has won 24 to date.

The other flingers who have defeated Benton this year are August Walsh of the Phillies, Perce Malone of the Cubs, Arthur Delaney and Bob Smith of the Braves, and Dazzy Vance of the Robins. Each went in as a starting pitcher against Benton and worked the full route.

DONIE BUSH'S men have made things pretty safe for themselves as far as fourth place is concerned by winning eir last three games.

If they should win only seven of their remaining 13 mes, the Reds would have to win 13 out of 15 to finish ead of them.

IF THERE was a bit of doubt still lingering in any corner as to the right of Bobby Jones to be ranked as the greatest golfer of all time, the Georgian wonder dispelled it Saturday when he won the United States amateur championship for the fourth time in five years by defeating Thomas Phillip Perkins, British amateur champion, 10 and 9, the most lopsided final-round result since the first playing of the tournament in 1895. Jones not only equaled the record of Jerry Travers in winning the title four times, but beat it in one sense because he did the trick in five years, whereas it took Travers seven years to do it. Besides, Jones surpassed Travers in being a finalist five straight times. With two American and two British open champions also to his credit, Jones stands out beyond any other golfer that ever lived. It begins to look as if playing the National amateur title tourney, as long as Bobby is able to compete, is largely a waste of time.

IF YOU don't object to wrestling with a mathematical puzzle when you have no chance of getting anywhere with it, try working out an "if" table on the pennant fight in the International League. This race, which ends next Sunday, has been the greatest in the country this year. Until recently five clubs had to be reckoned, and even at this late stage of the 168-game schedule three teams are so closely bunched that anything may happen.

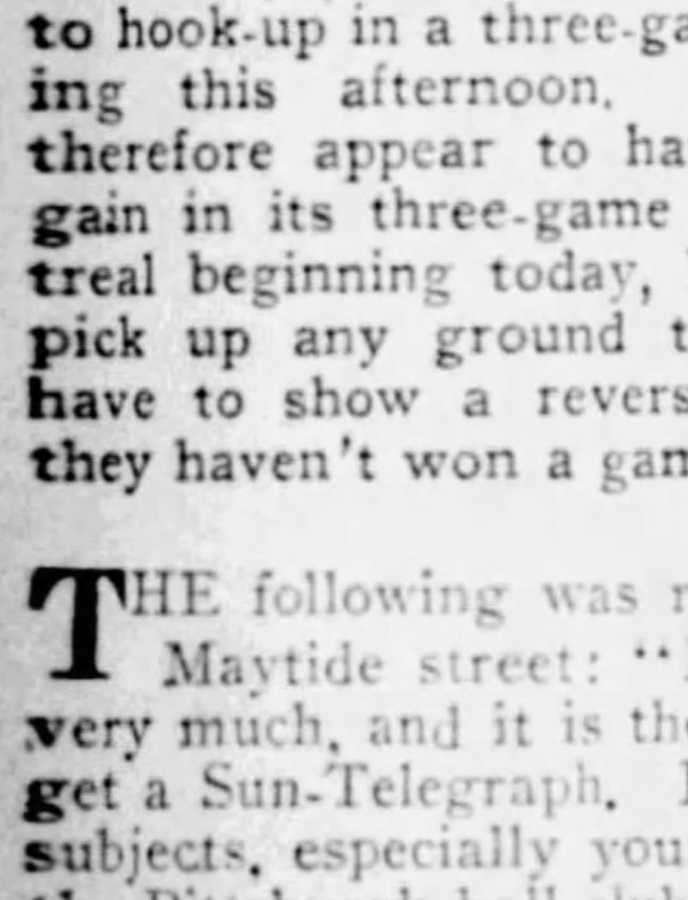
Larry Benton

Following the Buffalo-Toronto and Rochester-Montreal battling of the last three days, Toronto and Rochester are to hook-up in a three-game series starting this afternoon. Buffalo would therefore appear to have a chance to gain in its three-game series at Montreal beginning today, but in order to pick up any ground the Bisons will have to show a reversal of form, as they haven't won a game at Montreal this season.

THE following was received from Edward L. Stehle of 34 Maytide street: "I like your 'Sport Comment' column very much, and it is the first inside column I turn to when I get a Sun-Telegraph. I agree with you on most of the sport subjects, especially your opinion of Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh ball club. I like the way you hold up for him, when you say that he has done his utmost to win with a crippled club.

"Anybody ought to be able to see that at the beginning of the season the reason why the Pirates played so poorly was because of poor pitching and injuries to the players. Those who think no good of Donie should glance over the splendid record the Pirates have made since early in July. I hope you will continue to boost Donie."

THE verdict given to Young Corbett over Sergeant Sammy Baker last week having proved unpopular, even though the two judges and the referee unanimously gave the decision to Corbett, Tex Rickard plans to side-track the former Pittsburgher for the present, and when the New York commission meets tomorrow he will propose a match for the welterweight title between Champion Joe Dundee and the Negro sensation who recently knocked him out in two rounds, Jack Thompson.



Roy Spencer

Abe Katz, Baker's manager, will try to block this arrangement, and will make a counter proposal that Baker be permitted to box Thompson first to determine the Negro's championship qualifications. He promises that if Baker beats the Negro he will consent to let the Sergeant meet Corbett in a return match, the winner to fight Dundee for the title.

THERE are some uncommonly good prospects among the younger players added to the Pirate roster Saturday by recall or purchase, and considerable material that will be useful next year is apt to be found in the lot.

Two who look particularly promising are Catcher Roy Spencer and Infielder Coburn Jones. On the strength of what they have shown this year in the minors both may be of no little help to the Buccaneers.

SPENCER apparently has improved greatly since he was sold to Indianapolis last winter with Pitcher Emil Yde. He was rated the best catcher in the American Association for 1928.

During his three seasons here, Roy never rose to a higher ranking than that of second-string catcher, though he hit well against left-hand pitchers, was exceptionally good at catching foul flies and appeared to have plenty of ability in other directions. Now that he has had a chance to develop by regu-

12 LETTER MEN BACK FOR U. P. VARSITY

(This is the eighth of a series of articles written by Jess Carver, dealing with the football prospects of tri-state district colleges. A story on Grove City will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. Pictures of the Crimson squad in action in their training camp will accompany the article.

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 17.—Facing the hardest schedule of the past decade, with every opponent of last season's schedule bound to be stronger than in 1927 and with three new varsities of admitted strength, Westminster College's 1928 grid squad is face to face with a tough fall.

On paper, the United Presbyterians appear to be a powerful unit. There are 12 lettermen on the squad of 35. Last year's team, which was a strong defensive machine, is practically intact, and among the freshmen candidates for varsity berths are some players of high caliber. But because of the fact that every opponent on the schedule is relatively stronger than last year, and because the card holds nine games, every one of which will demand that the team be pointed for the particular struggle, the Titan outlook is none too rosy.

SQUAD AVERAGES 175 POUNDS

Westminster will be no heavier and no lighter than in years past. The entire squad averages 175

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

THIS is a dramatic age in which we are living. Take that recent series between the Athletics and Yankees in New York, which had fandom on its collective ear for the better part of a week, and the climax of the National Amateur golf championship tournament, which saw the American champion, Bobby Jones, and the British champion, Phil Perkins, surviving to fight it out in the final round, not to mention the ding-dong finish of the flag races in both major leagues. Yes, sir, it would be hard to beat the turn of events that has taken the minds of the reading public off—well, politics, for instance.

SPEAKING of dramatic situations, I have a letter from a committee of one who apparently does not think the baseball racket is on the up and high, judging from his punctuation. I have read the missive over several times and have come to the conclusion that he is harboring the idea that perhaps the closing of the gap between the A's and Yanks did not just happen, but was staged with a Belasco touch to intrigue the imagination of the fan army and induce it to open up its pocketbooks for that grand and hilarious New York series and the other battles through the stretch. If so, he is not alone in his deduction, for there are many others, judging from their unguarded comments, who think along the same lines of good business and the sport be damned.

It is difficult to conceive of baseball players taking a chance of kicking away a chance to gobble

HARGREAVES INJURED DURING PRACTICE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—New York fans today were still a bit feverish over Fred Fussell and his mates as the Giants and Pirates prepared for their second fight of a tense series. The wounded doughboy's epic of yesterday, when he blanked the men of McGraw, 1 to 0, may have a far-reaching effect on the pennant race in that it gave some comfort to the Cardinals, who have been hard pressed by the Giants and Cubs, especially the Manhattan maulers.

Southpaw Fred, supported in a regular manner by Rolly Hemsley and seven other stars, gave more than 40,000 Gothamites something to talk about during the coming winter nights as they broke the Giant's winning streak, which rested at 10.

Inasmuch as the Pirates have the victory and the glory that goes with it, the worthy foe should come in for the praise so richly deserved, and if Andy Cohen's line drive with the bases filled and two out in the ninth had followed a line a few feet either way from its chosen course this little tale would be one of sadness.

FUSSELL HURLS WELL.

Fussell, the soldier-athlete, had the poise of Tunney as he went to the mound for the ninth round. Les Mann, a tough guy for any southpaw, advances and Fussell goes about his task like a Cooper of a Plank. Mann swings and in the next instant you hear "I got it" from Sprout the Younger, in left field.

Freddie Lindstrom, one of the leading batters of the league, who is playing better ball now, perhaps, than any man in the sport, then takes his place. Swish; and a bounding ball, very much like a hit, goes between Pie Traynor and Buckshot Wright. But Wright comes out of the dirt with the sphere and lets fly with both barrels. Just as Grantham reaches for up world series spoils, but that doesn't deprive free-born American citizens of the right to do their own thinking as they see fit, even if they generally are wrong.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

SPORTS EDITOR

YE letter, the first part of which causes your humble scribe to blush right out loud and the last part of which may be treason, follows:

"Dear Sir:—Have been reading your 'Speaking of Sports' column since its inception and always have enjoyed the tectonics as applied by you on your subject. Whether your column portrayed facetious or dramatic exploitation, I have perused and enjoyed its every word. Nor can I say that one line of that column ever could be subjected to adverse criticism. Although these few lines were originally contrived to emphasize my automatic approval and acclamation toward your meritorious and indefatigable self, I find it convenient at the moment to utilize an inch or two of space giving my viewpoint concerning the much-disgusted—garsharn it!—I mean, MUCH-DISGUSSED 'baseball question.' (? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?) Everyone knows that the baseball industry is inundated with question marks. I'd say of baseball, in the vernacular, IT'S ALL THE BUNK."

DAY by day, in every way, Gene Tunney is getting a little more of that dear seclusion and privacy for which he has been so ardently pining. A year hence, he'll be just another one of those guys who used to be a fighter. As if he didn't have enough privacy the night he made his last ring appearance in a half-empty Yankee Stadium. But that is neither here nor there; permit me to call attention to his article in this issue of your favorite newspaper, the first of a series of an even dozen which are gems and well worth reading and pasting in your scrap book. They represent his last newspaper writings and are different from anything ever prepared for publication by an athletic luminary. They reflect his wide reading, and, consequently, his book knowledge, polished off with a fine philosophy.

PITT is to help Jimmy DeHart's Duke eleven dedicate its new stadium at Durham, N. C., next fall, and that's no Bull (joke and free adv.). For a while, after Carnegie Tech's stunt of playing Georgetown University at Albany, N. Y., this fall, I was afraid Pitt and Duke might meet in St. Petrograd or some other town easy of access by airplane and dog sled.

ASKED if he thought some hoodoo was working against his Athletics in their games with the New York Yankees during the recent hectic series in New York, Connie Mack replied, without attempting to blackjack his interviewer:

"Yes, a whole flock of them. There they are, out there on the field. They go by the name of Yankees."

J. OLAN YARNALL, an attorney of California, Pa., writes:

"Dear Sir:—Quite a large number of sportsmen from this and two adjoining counties are dissatisfied with the three-day-a-week hunting season for small game and have voiced their displeasure by protests to the Game Commission. Apparently the protests carried insufficient weight to change the minds of those who sponsored the season as it now stands.

"Will you use your paper as a medium for ascertaining the sentiment of the sportsmen of this state on this question, and also for the purpose of furnishing information regarding the avowed purpose of the Game Commission in making the change? If the reasons which prompted the action on the part of the members of the Game Commission have sufficient merit, a wider circulation of the same should have no other effect than to produce greater co-operation between the sportsmen and the Commission.

"Inasmuch as there is no state-wide organization of sportsmen, of which there is evidence of need, I feel that your paper can render valuable service to the sportsmen at this time. Comments of sportsmen from several different organizations evidencing a widespread interest in the present hunting season induced the writing of this letter."

MIELZINER LOST TO TARTAN SQUAD

FOLLOWING the stiff scrimmage which ended their two weeks' training session at Camp Hamilton, Pitt's varsity gridders will resume operations on the Panther practice field this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Jock Sutherland will hold two workouts daily this week as his candidates will not be called to the class room until Monday.

The Panthers will start applying the polishing process to their plays this week. Sutherland's squad is in top physical trim, and with two weeks to get ready for the season's opener with Thiel, Jock should have a smooth-working combination.

CARNEGIE TECH

Carnegie Tech's football squad begins its third week of preliminary training today in the Skibo bowl. The next several days is likely to determine the status of several sophomores and regulars who are feverishly working to establish themselves as varsity material for 1928.

Saul Mielziner, of Cleveland, regular center for two years, was recovering today from an operation of appendicitis which he underwent Saturday, a few hours after working out with the football squad. Mielziner will be lost to Carnegie Tech for a month.

With the exception of John Karcis, John Dreshar and Capt. Harpster, no man has been kept at the same positions twice. Shifts are made daily.

DUKE STAR HURT

James Parau, speedy and clever halfback of the Duquesne University, is confined to Mercy Hospital as a result of a dislocated ankle suffered in one of the preliminary workouts. The youngster will be lost to the varsity squad for some time, physicians at the hospital announced.

WALK MILLER SUICIDE

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Walk Miller, handler of pugilists and the manager of the late Tiger Flowers, committed suicide by shooting himself at his training camp, five miles from this city, yesterday. The reason for this act is not known.

Miller had operated his camp near here for a year and a half. He had planned to leave Monday for Atlanta, Ga., where he has relatives. His wife, now in Cleveland, was notified, and the body held here pending decision of relatives as to burial.

Miller, who had seen Tiger Flowers as a luminary in the fight circles, had managed at various times Young Stribling, Emanuel Quintero, Bob Lawson and Tony Herrara.

the ball, Lindstrom catapulted himself a la Frisch and in the dust and confusion the "safe sign" is registered by Dolly Stark, base umpire.

Francis Shanley Hogan hears the pleadings for a hit. The fans want a homer, but a single will do. "The noise is terrific as Hogan's liner kisses the left field concrete. Lloyd Waner tries to throw out Lindstrom at third, but Fred beats the play and Shanley reaches second with the winning run.

WALKS JACKSON

While the excitement is at its height Fussell is then instructed to put Jackson on the bases and take the risk with Terry. Jackson acts as if he'd like to swing at one, but Fussell is careful to keep the ball far away and after four pitches the bases are loaded. Bill Terry, a great hitter, not too good against lefthanders, comes up.

The cool Fussell all but strikes Bill out with a curve on the outside corner. Fred has two strikes on the slugger and then breaks the hook, but Umpire Rigler declares it a "ball" and Fussell continues to work. Terry pops to Wright.

What Cohen did in less than 30 seconds will not be forgotten by those who saw his drive. Andy measured Fussell's first offering beautifully. His hot liner, to many, had the thrill of victory as it streaked across the infield. But one could almost see the twinkle in Glenn Wright's eye as he raised his hands and gathered in the ball. Hard luck, Aandy—nice work. Fred—but don't leave without placing a word of respect to Larry Benton, who made a heroic attempt to gain his twenty-fifth triumph of the season.

BENTON DOES WELL

Benton allowed two hits in eight innings of remarkable pitching. Jack Scott pitched the final frame and allowed Lloyd Waner a scratch tap that raised the Pittsburgh total to three. Fussell allowed only seven hits. Yet it was hard for Benton to take a setback in view of his splendid box work.

Fussell contributed heavily to his own success with his single in the third. Wright opened the inning with a safe drive to center, Hemsley going out on a fly. Fussell singled to right, the shortstop stopping at third. Adams walked to fill the bases.

At this juncture Lindstrom and Hogan made a dizzy play. Freddie had scant chance of nailing Sprout Waner on his tap, but he scoops up the grounder in one hand and throws plate-ward. The throw was low, but Shandy scooped the ball for a force out of Wright. Benton had three balls and two strikes on Brother Paul when he threw a ball that forced in Fussell with the only tally of the game.

North Side Johnny Cummings, batting for Benton in the eighth, almost jammed up the Pirates. Johnny whipped a hot smash over second, but Wright grabbed the grounder in one hand and completed the play at first base.

Erving Brame will pitch for the Pirates in today's game. The Buccos may face Lefthander Carl Hubbell.

HARGREAVES HURT

Catcher Charley Hargreaves is a Pirate casualty, but the Trenton athlete considers himself lucky that he is not in a hospital after his experience of yesterday afternoon, when he was struck in the head by a thrown ball during the Pirates' fielding session.

Hargreaves was standing near the plate when a throw by Pie Traynor eluded Rolly Hemsley and collided with the side of Hargreave's head. The blow was hard enough to put the first-string receiver in a daze and he was immediately taken to the office of the Giants' physician.

The sphere caused a severe dent near the cheek bone and raised a big welt, but fortunately no bones were fractured, according to the result of an X-ray picture taken by the Giants' doctor. Charley may be able to go to his post today.

Pitcher Glenn Spencer and First Baseman Willis Windle reached New York last night from Columbia. They will don Pirate uniforms today and will remain with the club for the remainder of the tour.

FAIRIES WIN AGAIN

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 17.—Fairmont scored its third straight victory over the Hanover Raiders of the Blue Ridge League here yesterday afternoon, winning by a 6-to-3 count and putting the Mid-Atlantic champs within reach of the tri-state series.

pounds. The linemen, 21 of 'em, will average better than 179 pounds, the backs, 14 in all, will go 168. The squad is divided into seven ends, four tackles, seven guards and three centers. There are three quarterbacks, eight halfbacks and three fullbacks.

The Titans are fortunate to be under the extremely capable coaching of two smart football men. Head Coach Dyke Beede, former Carnegie Tech ace, has demonstrated his ability in the three years he has been with the U. P.'s His assitant, John Lawther, is a fine line mentor and knows both the offensive and defensive side of the story.

As far as weight and numbers go, Westminster is well off for ends. Forsha, Abrahams, Tweedie and Crowell are the first string wings. Abrahams, a freshman, replacing the injured Tweedie, who will likely reclaim his varsity berth when the season once opens. He is suffering from a badly wrenched leg at present. Abrahams has shown up well in the work so far.

Pipoly, Smalley and Elers have given promise of developing into first-class replacement men. Of the three, Pipoly, because of his weight, will get the first call. The seven wings average 172 pounds.

Capt. Furno and Dombrowski, stars of the past two years, continue to lead in the fight for the tackle berths. Fisher, a 176-pounder, and Dishong, a member of the 1927 squad, though not a letter man, are the other candidates for the berths. Dishong weighs 225, being the second heaviest man on the squad.

GUARD HEAVY

At the guards, Sweet, weighing 238 pounds; Fuller, Armour and Ayers will see the most action as far as can be determined from what the boys have shown so far. Sweet is on the hospital list with an injured knee, and in his absence, Fuller and Armour, the former a freshman, have been getting the call for first team work. Clark, Kocheran and Cebula are fighting for recognition, which they may well win, as second stringers. They lack both the weight and the experience.

No one has come forward to challenge seriously the right of Boone, last year's varsity center, to the position. Kruger, a senior, is working hard for the understudy job, with West, a freshman candidate, on his heels. Boone is a good defensive man, who passes accurately and charges well on the offense.

Norman Holzapfel, of Blairsville, is the team general, kicker, passer and one of the best ball carriers. He is being counted on for the quarterback post, which he filled creditably part of the time last year, when he was not playing halfback.

Lauder, Dible and Hall, all three lettermen, are after halfback posts, though Paul Campbell, a junior and former Westinghouse High star, has made himself a regular in the scrimmages so far. Other halfback candidates are Prokop, Torma, Frack and Palmer.

HAVRILLA FULLBACK

Steve Havrilla is the line plunger and regular fullback. He is a senior and is certain to retain his varsity job, even in the face of the challenges of Michaels and Meredith, freshmen hopefuls. Meredith weighs only 155 pounds, but has shown some class.

The quarterback candidates, aside from Holzapfel, are McQuiston, a letterman, and Ledger, a freshman.

In 1927, Westminster scored 68 points in two of the seven games and went scoreless in the others. Buffalo University was walloped, 43-0, and Theil defeated in the closing game, 25-12. The Titan opponents last year counted but 50 points in the seven games, an average of a bit over one touchdown a game. Neither Allegheny or Waynesburg could score.

The U. P.'s open this year's campaign by playing the great Carnegie Tech eleven at Rayen High Stadium in Youngstown. This contest will give the boys their baptism of fire right off the bat.

Following the Tech fracas, Allegheny will invade New Wilmington for the annual game with Westminster. The next week the Titans will be at Greensburg for a game with St. Francis, the eleven that won a 3-0 verdict last fall. On October 20 the team will invade Grove City for a game with Charley Berry's Crimson. They did not meet last fall.

Following the game with Grove City, Theil will be played at New Wilmington; Duquesne invaded in Pittsburgh and Bethany at Bethany, W. Va. Waynesburg will appear in New Wilminton on November 17 and on November 24, the season will close with the team facing Geneva in a game that may settle the Conference championship.

lar working during a full season in a strong minor league he may fit in very nicely on the Corsair receiving corps.

YOUNG JONES appeared to have the stuff even when he was in a comparatively green state last spring, and he has strengthened the good impression he made at that time by his splendid work for Bridgeport during the Eastern League season, which closed yesterday. In addition to hitting over .300 and playing a great fielding game at shortstop, he won the reputation of being one of the most peppery players in the league, earning the nickname of Gabby. Jones reports to Manager Bush today and may break into a few games as a utility man before the season ends, but in any event he is certain to be given a second thorough trying out next spring and is likely to make a strong bid for retention.

W. O. W. NINE WINS IN N. B. A. SERIES

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—The W. O. C.) yesterday, 5 to 4. W. O. W. faces a stiff game today when it meets the outfit from New Haven, Conn., which also has two victories under its belt. The score:

Hagen-Farrell Final May Be Played Here

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(INS.)—The fifth and deciding 36-hole match between Johnny Farrell, United States open champion, and Walter Hagen, British open champion, in their unofficial "world series," will be played either at Detroit or at the Oakmont club in Pittsburgh. Coming from behind in the last five holes, Farrell won yesterday's match at the Siwanoy course here and tied the series.

Farrell's victory came on the seventeenth hole in the afternoon round. His score was 37-35-38-35—145, while Hagen had a 35, a 37, another 37 and a 39 for a total of 148.

ZETEL, SOCCER STAR, SUFFERS BROKEN LEG

Otto Zetel, crack center half of the German Sport Club, suffered a broken leg in the opening American League game at Dunlevey, yesterday. Zetel was rushed to the Charleroi Hospital, where his leg was set, and later removed to the South Side Hospital. The Germans were leading by 1 goal to 0 when the accident happened, and Dunlevy tied up the game in the second half, the final score being 1-1. The other game in the loop found the Westinghouse team swamping McKeesport National Tube by a 7 goals to 0 score at Chambers Field.

Zetel's injury will take him out of soccer for the season and probably for good. The break is just above the ankle. Zetel is classed as the greatest halfback in Western Pennsylvania, and had the honor of playing the position against the Glasgow Rangers when they appeared at Pitt Stadium.

CARRICK JUNIOR NINE WINS TITLE

The Carrick Junior nine, representing Phillips Park formerly Carrick Park, defeated the Winters nine, 9 to 3, in the final game of a series for the playground baseball title.

WESTINGHOUSE HIGH WANTS TO BOOK GAME

Westinghouse High School is eager to arrange a football game to be played on Friday, November 2, or Saturday, November 3. A game abroad is prefered. John A. Harrison, Westinghouse High School, Pittsburgh, is making arrangements.

CUDDY BOXES BABY GANS

Cuddy DeMarco, of McKeesport, who is fighting on an average of once or twice a week these days, goes against a good boxer and stiff puncher when he meets Baby Joe Gans in the Dexter Park arena in Brooklyn tonight. Gans knocked out Harry Felix in his most recent start.

Mike Moran of Mt. Washington, who has fought Tony Canzoneri, the featherweight champion, and no less than five former flyeight, bantamweight and featherweight champions, returns to the ring after a protracted absence to battle Frankie Porto of Clairton in the windup at the Washington Gardens, Washington, Pa., tonight. Howard Mayberry and Andy Tomosky box the semi-final.

Young Firpo of Louisville and Bert Hilliard, of Canada, furnish the 10-round windup at Jolly Bowl New Castle, tonight. Frankie Moran of Homewood and Frankie Rio of Cleveland, are in the semi-finals.

Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, boxes Johnny Roberts of Huntington, W. Va., at Charlotte, N. C., tonight.

Joe Packo, the heavyweight who boxes Ike McFowler, the Johnstown star, in the main event at McKeesport next Thursday night is managed by Joe Daily of Toledo, who also handles Jack Duffy and a flock.

Promoters of amateur boxing shows locally have been cleaning up recently, attracting capacity crowds and having very little overhead. As a matter of fact, they have been meeting with more success than some of the professional show sponsors.

OKESON HERE TOMORROW

Walter Okeson, in charge of the assignment of Eastern college football officials, will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow afternoon and evening to conduct two meetings for officials and coaches. At 4 o'clock, Okeson will discuss rules with officials and at 8 o'clock he will conduct a similar meeting for coaches and officials. Both meetings are scheduled at the Schenley Hotel.

12 RULES FOR SUCCESS

by GENE TUNNEY
RETIRED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

NO. 1—THE HOME

EVERY young American should realize that coming from a humble home is not a liability but an asset. Guthrie tells us that the birds that soar the highest have the hardest upbringing. The eagle is reared amid hardships. Its cradle is the open shelf of a rock, the nest of a few rough sticks spread on a cold surface exposed to the rain and the blast. Such is the nursery of the bird which later soars in the sunny skies and with strong wings cleaves the clouds and rides upon the storm.

The leaders of all forward movements in all lines of activity, as a rule, come from the humble classes. Men prominent in invention, discovery, scientific research and athletics usually have gone through the school of adversity. Kepler spent his days in want. Faraday's faithful work as a scullion in Davy's kitchen led him from poverty to world-wide renown. Newton was the son of a poor widow. George Stevenson, the inventor of the locomotive engine, was a poor, sickly child. Robert Burns, Scotland's poet, endured the sorrows and trials attendant upon a constant struggle to keep the wolf from the door. It was his own experience that made him able to identify himself so thoroughly with the suffering of the poor and to voice their sentiments, aspirations, regrets and griefs.

If I have achieved any distinction in my profession and have kept the confidence, good will and best wishes of my friends, I attribute it to the fact that I have never once in the slightest degree been ashamed of those godly and industrious parents of mine who always pointed the way to integrity and industry. It was not what they had but what they were that urged me on and in all my contests I have never, to my knowledge, descended to anything that would bring a blush to the cheeks that I pressed in my childhood with fond affection.

Parental love, affection and devotion can be carried into the boxing ring as easily as into the Senate chamber if a man has in him the spirit of gratitude and noble breeding. For any man to minimize a humble home paves the way for a humiliated career in any line. A humble home in Greenwich Village is as good an incentive for the building of a life as a residence on Riverside Drive.

MEN WHO GUARD THEIR HEALTH SMOKE CIGARS

94% of the Principal Executives of the Pullman Company are Cigar Smokers . . .

La Palina is America's Largest Selling High Grade Cigar [OVER A MILLION A DAY] its outstanding popularity is the best proof of its unusual quality

A Message Vital To Your Health

AS a result of a survey, it has been ascertained that 94% of the principal executives of the Pullman Company smoke cigars. Their position and work requires the clear mind and the steady nerves that are so important to good health.

A cigar is smoked for enjoyment and taste, slowly and quietly, not to gratify a mere nervous habit or craving. So one cigar is not lighted from the end of another, nervously or hurriedly. The day's end does not find the cigar smoker tired, with nerves aflutter, throat irritated and mouth parched.

For to use the words of one of New York's most celebrated throat specialists:

"Perhaps the basic reason for the great prevalence of throat troubles is the irritating action of hot tobacco smoke on the very sensitive membranes of the mouth and throat.

"Cigar smoke is cool, because the tobacco burns slowly and the smoke is filtered and cooled as it is drawn through the cigar itself. Moreover, a cigar is made entirely of tobacco without the use of an artificial quick-burning substance for wrapper."

Make this test for a week—smoke cigars exclusively and you will find yourself feeling better, with no cough or throat irritation, improved nerves, increased vitality and less of that tired feeling.

To really test cigars with justice to yourself and to cigars, we suggest the test be made with La Palinas. Since they are America's largest selling high grade cigar . . . over a million a day—you can smoke them, confident that they will please you.

The sensational success of La Palina results from an exclusive and secret blend which combines for the first time in one cigar an extreme mildness with a rare richness of both taste and fragrance.

Business Is Doing Better; Stocks Act Suspiciously.

By B. C. FORBES

VERY badly needed was Friday's reminder that all is not gold that glitters on the New York Stock Exchange. Rapid advances of 5, 10, 15 and 20 points were coming to be regarded as normal. But that a prominent stock could break $30 a share in half as many minutes came as a shock.

Many more such shocks probably will be suffered before the present artificially-boomed speculation is deflated.

Meanwhile, however, the very powerful Bull operators may continue in control and force their favorite issues to still dizzier heights.

The New York Stock Exchange has become more of a Monte Carlo than a sober, responsible, rational market for investments.

WERE 20 of the heaviest Bull manipulators—yes, 10 of them—suddenly to switch to equally aggressive Bearing tactics, pandemonium would instantly break out.

I would even go further. If one man, W. C. Durant, were to skip from under, I believe that half of the stocks which have been most in the limelight would break sensationally.

Of course, the leading manipulators have no such intentions. They still have faith in their ability to uphold the market and to juggle their pet issues.

But it can be safely assumed that they have reached the stage where they would rather turn their dazzling paper profits into cash than borrow more money to make the Bullish fires roar more fiercely.

In plainer language, distribution, not further accumulation, must now be the main aim. Manipulators and other speculators do not force up quotations for securities they want to hold as permanent investments; the forcing-up process is engineered to make re-selling possible at a generous profit.

LET it be added, however, that stock purchasing by the public is again eagerly under way. Houses handling less than hundred-share lots are tremendously busy.

Without outside buying we would not have witnessed dealings of 4,000,000 to 4,500,000 shares a day in a rising market. Some part of this public buying unquestionably is for strict investment. But, a much larger part of it is inspired by the desire to sell out at a profit.

If a bad break can be staved off, the public are little likely to throw over their holdings in overwhelmingly volume. But if and when a drastic relapse occurs, then the possibilities are not particularly pleasant to contemplate.

The fact that bonds have been declining, that the yield on good bonds is now higher than the yield on speculative stocks and that new financing has been severely discouraged by inordinately high money rates in Wall Street does not add to confidence in the stability or safety of the market at current heights.

I CANNOT, however, take an alarmist view of the outlook for money rates. My guess is that the peak will be reached at the end of this month and that rates will very shortly thereafter begin to ease.

Charges of 7 to 8 per cent for call money and 6¾ to 7 per cent for time money are entirely out of line with the rental value of funds in other great financial centers.

Should such rates continue to rule, more gold would undoubtedly flow into this country despite any obstacles governmental authorities might attempt to raise. Just as water seeks the lowest level, so money seeks the highest level where safety is assured and properly-handled Wall Street funds are universally regarded as safe.

THE general trend in business still is towards betterment.

The automobile industry is the best performer. Steel companies are doing well. The copper industry has undergone transformation. The shoe industry is on the mend. Sugar companies appear to be doing better. The oil industry is at last approaching less chaotic conditions. Rubber companies should be facing better times. The coal industry is not as demoralized as it was.

Labor is in large demand both for agriculture and industry.

Retail trade, though spotty, is described as slightly more active. Bank clearings are running extremely high, but stock speculation is a chief cause.

On the other hand, the latest building statistics show some decrease. Car loadings are not quite up to a year ago, notwithstanding that the returns then were substantially below 1926.

Cotton consumption has decreased: the cotton industry continues the least satisfactory in the country. Raw cotton prices and grain prices naturally have been depressed by prospects of at least adequate yields.

Many railroads complain of inadequate net profits. Dear money is not conducive to business enterprise.

THE presidential campaign is occasioning less concern as a possible source of disturbance than the feverish stock market. Provided both behave rationally, the remaining months of the year should bring some further improvement in general business.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Copper Position Sound.

The statistical position of copper metal is the best in several years and was the prime influence in Saturday's raise to 15 cents a pound. Consumption of the metal has been greater than production for about a year. This brought about a rapid reduction of refined stocks, so that at the beginning of the current month stocks in the United States were sufficient for only 10 days' consumption. During August, however, production climbed to within a few tons of shipments, indicating that equilibrium might be restored soon. Combined export and domestic shipments of refined copper in August amounted to 143,638 tons, setting a new high record for all time, and exceeding the July total by 4,608 tons. Production of refined copper increased by 8,468 tons in August, reaching a total of 143,560 tons, the largest on record. The record production, however, still fell short of the shipments, so that refined stocks, which already were dangerously low at the end of July, were decreased further to 54,793 tons at the end of August. This total, at the present shipping rate is sufficient for less than two weeks' requirements.

STOCK TRADING HEAVY, SHARES ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Speculation for the advance was resumed on a broad scale in today's stock market, with the coppers, oils, steels and southwestern rails giving the most impressive demonstrations of group strength. Trading was so large in volume that the ticker fell 35 minutes behind the market by early afternoon, causing widespread confusion in brokerage houses throughout the country.

True to predictions last week, the call money rate was lowered from 7 to 6½ per cent, but this was attributed to the temporary surplus of funds incidental to September 15 disbursements, income tax payments and government financing. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates. Sterling exchange hovered around the low level of the year, arousing hopes of further gold imports this week.

Enormous accumulations of the coppers was in reflection of the advance in red metal prices last week. Federal Mining and Smelting soared 13 points to 148, and Cerro de Pasco jumped 6½ to 100, both new peak prices for the year. Other coppers to move into new high ground were Anaconda, Granby, Chile, Inspiration and Kennecott.

United States Steel common crossed 160 for the first time this year. Central Alloy Steel also attained a new top. Pierce Oil preferred with a gain of 6¾ points to a new high record at 30⅞ featured the oil group. Atlantic Refining, Skelly, White Eagle and Richfield of California also rgistered new highs and Texas Corporation changed hands in large volume around the year's high price.

Warner Brothers issues, which soared about 10 points in the early trading, lost about half their gains on realizing. Curtis Aeroplane, Motor Products, Allied Chemical, American Can, American International, Brooklyn Union Gas, Midland Steel Products preferred and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe all sold 4 to 5 points higher.

Except for the weakness of Porto Rican Tobacco A and South Porto Rican Sugar, the market paid little attention to the reports of heavy damage and loss of life in the tropical storm which swept over Porto Rico and is now cutting across Florida.

GLASS STOCKS CONTINUE RISE ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

PLATE AND U. S. GLASS MAKE SUBSTANTIAL GAINS

Interest centered in the glass stocks again at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. Prices were steady to firm and business was in fairly large volume.

American Window Glass Machine, which executed a sensational rise of eight points in the short session Saturday, was pushed to a further new high of 41 on buying orders appearing at the start of business today. General betterment in the glass industry and hopes of favorable tariff action are behind the current activity in the glass division.

Pittsburgh Plate sold off a little on profit taking involving a comparatively small amount of stock. Last week the stock shot up to 300, but subsequently lost 12 points of the gain, droping back to 288 for Saturday's close and selling in the early market today at 285. United States Glass firmed up during the forenoon, but did not reflect any special influence. Little has been heard recently of the rumored amalgamation of this company and several other flint glass concerns, but traders interested in the stock over the past few months have expressed confidence that some such deal will be put through ultimately.

Miscellaneous manufacturing issues were moderately active but there were no wide price movements. Fuels were firm with Lone Star selling at 55 in the early trading, the best price of the current movement.

The sustained strength in the New York list was reflected in higher prices in the later market here. Pittsburgh Plate Glass rallied sharply and there was a noticeable improvement over the first prices for United States Glass. Lone Star Gas broke through 55 on the up-side when the supply available at 55 was depleted around midday.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Demands for fruit and vegetables at the local wholesale produce district were slow today. The quotations were about unchanged.

Butter and eggs were firm. Cheese was steady. No change was made in the quotations on these markets.

Poultry was in liberal supply, with the market about steady, demand fair and quotations unchanged.

Car lot supplies were heavy, a total of 771 cars being on track. Arrivals included 28 cars of apples, 12 cabbage, 17 cantaloupes, 8 celery, 4 lemons, 3 lettuce, 9 onions, 8 oranges, 22 peaches, 10 pears, 1 peppers, 1 carrots, 3 cauliflower, 1 cucumbers, 19 potatoes, 20 sweet potatoes, 2 watermelons, 1 cranberries, 6 prunes and 1 turnips.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

Securities of Closely-Held Business Here Go on Market as Prices Go Too High for Convenience.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE past two years have been marked by efforts on the part of large Pittsburgh business organizations to secure wider distribution of their securities.

MANY companies found that the results of years of accumulating large surpluses and developing earning power, had established a market price for their stocks, which was too high for convenience.

The value of many of the units of ownership in Pittsburgh industries had become so great that an active open market could not be maintained for the stocks. Pittsburgh had a large proportion of companies whose stocks might be said to be in the millionaire class.

Shares have been split into more satisfactory trading units on a wholesale scale.

SEVERAL companies which had always been family affairs or whose securities were closely held, were made public investment mediums through recapitalizations and the offering of blocks of the stock for sale.

There has been a very definite movement of the ownership of local corporations from the hands of founders to smaller investors.

THE Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company and the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company each will split their common stocks into lower priced units before the end of the year.

Public participation in the ownership of these companies has been large, but the market activity of the stocks has been light, due to the high prices.

Pittsburgh Plate will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange after the recapitalization has been completed. Pittsburgh Plate will be split three shares for one and Harbison-Walker four shares for one.

Westinghouse Air Brake Company has completed a three for one split of its capital stock. This company has enjoyed an exceptionally active market for its stock, but better results were expected from wider distribution.

THE changes from close to publicly owned corporations has undoubtedly been accelerated by the attractive market for the sale of common stocks.

The almost uninterrupted advance in the stock market has given families in the control of sound business organizations an unprecedented opportunity to sell their companies.

McKEESPORT TIN PLATE COMPANY and Spang-Chalfant & Co., have been among the largest of the industrial corporations to invite general participation in their ownership. Both of these have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange this year.

The sale of stock of Kaufmann Department Stores Company and of Joseph Horne Company a few months ago was further evidence of this shifting of ownership.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Influenced by reports of favorable weather for the Canadian harvest, wheat prices here went downgrade early today after a show of firmness at the start. Initial gains were associated with unlooked for upturns in quotations at Liverpool. Opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, Chicago wheat later declined all-around to well below Saturday's finish. Corn started ⅛c to ⅝@¾c up, and subsequently kept near to the initial range. Oats were firm. Provisions held about steady.

At noon wheat was ½c to ⅝@¾c net lower and corn varying from ⅛c off to ½c up.

With harvest conditions in Canada auspicious and with arrivals of wheat at Winnipeg totaling 1,447 cars against 421 cars a year ago, the selling side of the wheat market here proved attractive much of the time today. On the other hand, declines in prices here were in the face of some falling off in domestic receipts northwest and of cables telling of decreasing stocks in Great Britain, with millers' demand there improving. Meanwhile, too, estimates of the French wheat crop were 4,800,000 bushels smaller than last year.

European buying of September delivery of corn here helped give a lift today to the corn market as a whole. Offerings were light and September rose to the best price since June 6. Illinois reports indicated that some new corn is already being shucked and fed to hogs, and that this would increase in amount from day to day.

Jaworski's Bandit Life Proves Crime Impractical

This article is not written for the good and law-abiding residents of the city because it is intended to be a kind of a sermon on the futility of the unprofitable calling of the criminal. The Jaworski case is the specific topic.

Jaworski is a captive in Cleveland, dangerously wounded. If he recovers, the dark prospect before him is death as a slayer of his fellow men. Jaworski was a "big man" in his business. One who had brains enough to accomplish successfully the robbery of an armored express truck, guarded by armed men, and escape with a payroll amounting to $104,000. That was but one of his "jobs." Others netted him amounts running into the tens of thousands of dollars. He was a plunger for "big money" and was so frequently a "winner" that he seemed to make a fool of the law. Yet in the end the law laid the giant low, and his future promises only ignominious death.

And what did crime bring to him? What did Jaworski buy with the hundreds of thousands of dollars he obtained in his career of a few years as a criminal? He bought nothing but the furtive life of a hunted animal. He bought dark alleys, criminal underground burrows, and the necessity of being always alert, always ready to jump like a rabbit in hunting season; never to have any freedom of action, but always the need to shape his movements in a manner to "outsmart" those on his trail; always to be thinking of living just for the moment. His every step had to be planned and cautiously made, every waking minute a terrible preliminary to the even more terrible one when he would be forced to make a stand at last.

Time and again it has been said that criminality does not pay, but it will do no harm to repeat it. (Remember, we are not writing for the good people.) Let the young gangster as well as the bootlegger, hi-jacker, dope peddler, grafter and political crook be warned that crime is foolish and impractical. If it were really practical, and certain of profit in the end, criminals would have the competition of people smarter than they are.

Crookdom, attention—you never can "get away with it" for long!

G'Bye, Pirates; Lose, Win, It Won't Bother Us Any

Good-by, Pirates—take care o' yourselves. Come back again next April and we'll be glad to see you. Just now it is immaterial, but by April we feel sure that our indifference will have vanished and that we shall be ready to sacrifice another fatted calf or something. When we think of the high hopes we had for you last spring, and the world series money we were going to squander on you in October, and the way you disappointed your old Father Pitt, we are not sorry to see you clear out, to come back no more this season. We have no taste for you now.

Your games in the East mean nothing to us. Win them or lose them and it will be all the same. The baseball joy in Pittsburgh is on a par with that in Mudville on a certain grief-filled occasion when the celebrated Mr. Casey was shattered as an idol. When you come back next spring not as league champions, as you did this year, perhaps we may not expect so much of you as we did then.

Anyway, good-bye—a su-su-sad good-bye. Take care o' yourselves.

Wasted Man Power

Holland Studies It.

Holland has in hand a useful undertaking, "the study of wasted man power."

The idea is to find means through machinery and science of substituting steam, electricity and steel for human energy.

The best way to reduce man power waste is to RAISE WAGES.

When wages are HIGH employers use their brains and try to find machines to do men's work.

When labor at the mines cost almost nothing, and women in Britain were cheaper than mine ponies, women on their hands and knees with chains around their necks passing under their bodies were fastened to little coal cars in the mines.

Now they use ponies or machinery and boys in America, no longer, with their fingers bleeding, pick sharp pieces of slate out of the coal. Machines do the work because it is CHEAPER than human machines. Brains and science do more than philanthropy.

Europe Knows

Thanks to the War.

Great Britain has long since had an "Air Minister" responsible for the development of aviation.

Mussolini is Italy's air minister. And no nation works more earnestly or successfully than Italy to develop aviation, with the possible exception of Germany.

Now the French decide to establish a new ministry, with exclusive control of national aviation.

When President Coolidge finishes with the trout and returns from his well-earned vacation, perhaps he and Congress will take up the question of appointing a new cabinet minister, and a special department for aviation, particularly in connection with national defense.

To make of our air force a minor department of the Army and Navy is as stupid as it would be to subordinate powder and guns to bows and arrows.

We need a cabinet officer devoted exclusively to aviation, and we need AN AIR FLEET.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Secret of the Telescope

"There has been lengthy discussions in our office about seeing with the naked eye and with field-glasses or telescopes. I contend that no one can see farther with a glass than without it, but concede that with glasses the objects are much clearer. If I am right what is the reconciling theory as to the study of the heavenly bodies with telescopes?—E. Purcell, Chicago."

THE telescope, or field glass, of course, does not bring the object nearer, but it enlarges the visual angle under which the object is seen, thus increasing its apparent size. In that respect the effect is the same as that of looking at the object with the naked eye from a nearer viewpoint.

An ordinary opera glass magnifies, i. e., enlarges the visual angle, two-and-a-half or three times. The object therefore appears that much larger. But if, without the glass, you go two-and-a-half or three times nearer the object, it will look just as large to the naked eye as it does when seen from the original distance through the opera glass.

If you think that the only effect of a glass is to make the object look clearer, you can prove the error by looking with one eye directed through the glass and the other outside. With a little practice it is easy to apply this method of measuring the magnifying power of an opera glass or telescope. For such comparisons a brick wall makes an excellent object. Count the number of layers of brick seen by the naked eye that correspond with one layer seen through the glass.

The increase of clearness is due to the visibility of smaller and finer details which the increase of apparent size reveals in the view with the glass. However, when the object looked at is a star or a mere point of light, the glass increases the apparent brightness by gathering at its focus and transmitting to the nerve of vision more rays of light than can pass through the pupil of the naked eye. This is the secret of the wonderful power of a large telescope to make visible millions of stars where the naked eye sees only hundreds and to reveal faint nebulous objects that cannot be seen at all without such aid.

The average diameter of the circular pupil of the human eye is about one-fifth of an inch. The area of any circle is proportional to the square of its diameter. Take, then, a telescope with an object glass 10 inches in diameter and it will collect 10x10x5=500 times as much light from a star as can pass through the average pupil in naked-eye seeing. The hundredth-inch telescope at Mount Wilson theoretically collects 100x100x5=50,000 times as much light as normally enters the eye from a heavenly body.

I say "theoretically" because there is always some loss of light when the rays pass through the lenses, or are reflected from the mirrors of a telescope, so that the proportion is not quite so large as estimated.

On the other hand, if you are looking, not at a point of light like a star, but at an extended surface like that of the moon, the gain of light by the telescope is turned to relative loss when the magnifying power is so great that the area of the object is expanded in a ratio greater than the total increase of light. Thus with a high telescopic magnification the shadowy regions of the moon appear darker than they do to the naked eye.

Talking About Hubby

MRS. MARRIED WOMAN, don't express to others the opinion that your husband is an important person in the concern where he is employed.

You are bound to be ridiculed, and he may be embarrassed.

The man who owns the business or has a controlling interest is the big man of the place.

Others are comparatively small.

Good positions, perhaps, but still they are employes.

Some husbands lead their wives to think that the organization for which they work would be in a poor way if it were not for them.

And wives who believe such a thing are likely to make it known among their personal friends and acquaintances.

Some wives might be greatly chagrined if they knew just how small the place their husbands fill in their individual positions.

It is unwise for a woman to talk about her husband in connection with his place of business or the company employing him.

Young wives can damage their husbands thus and interfere with further advancement with the firm if they are so indiscreet as to talk about their husbands, especially as concerns their jobs.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELS

Songs

MAN'S songs are many, sometimes proud and gay,
They lift triumphant wings
Above the drab-clad ranks that march away
To war's fierce bellowings.

Again, like thistledown, they drift, they float,
Faint ripples on the breeze,
They rise serenely from some happy throat,
Sweet, humble melodies.

And there are deeper, wordless songs men bring;
Where, after anguish long,
Peace flowers into its perfect blossoming.
The silence is a song.

Stars and Stripes

The sword of peace at last! Down with the ploughshare of war!

Great Passages from the Bible

"Trust in the Lord"
(Proverbs 3; 1-12)

MY SON, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments:

For length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee.

Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart:

So shalt thou find favour and good understanding in the sight of God and man.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding.

In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear the Lord, and depart from evil.

It shall be health to thy navel, and marrow to thy bones.

Honour the Lord with thy substance, and with the firstfruits of all thine increase:

So shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine.

My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord; neither be weary of his correction:

For whom the Lord loveth he correcteth; even as a father the son in whom he delighteth.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today
By WILL ROGERS

THE old superstition that the women do all the talking is still pretty strong, and I wonder why the women don't organize to stamp it out. All they'd have to do would be to show the world how they can keep still while their husbands talk. Course, the unmarried girls are doing a fine job all along, because they know the only way to please the fellow is to keep still while he talks about himself.

But there was a kid asked his dad what was a monolog.

"Why," says the dad, kind of sore, "that's when your mother and me indulge in a conversation about money."

"Oh, I thought that was dialog!"

"Nope, you're wrong, my boy. A dialog is when two people are talking."

A Girl Story

CHARLIE CHAPLIN told a New York reporter a girl story.

"Girls are more beautiful and more—er—practical than ever," he began.

"A girl named Montmorency sat in a moonlit California rose garden with a young man named Fetherstonhaugh. Fetherstonhaugh bent over her and said in a passionate voice:

"'Miss Montmorency—Augusta, if I may call you so—I am not rich in this world's goods, but I—'

"With a slight wave of her cigaret she silenced him.

"'That will do, Mr. Fetherstonhaugh,' she said. 'No!'"

Canny

AN uneducated Scotsman made a fortune. One day he and an acquaintance were talking, when the latter said to old Duncan:

"You don't know enough to go indoors when it rains. Why, you can'e even spell 'bird.'"

"B-u-r-d," said Duncan.

"I tell you you don't know anything. Why, if you had to spell to make a living you'd have been dead years ago. I'll bet you a fiver you can't spell 'bird.'"

"I'll take ye," replied Duncan.

After the money was put down Duncan said, "B-i-r-d."

"That's not the way you spelled it the first time."

"I wisna bettin' then."

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

O. O. McINTYRE
San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—San Francisco's buoyancy and zip weave a lasting impression. A San Franciscan is rarely happy elsewhere. Rudyard Kipling tooled the penegyric; "San Francisco has only one drawback, 'tis hard to leave." And—sneaking over a last one—that is true of Los Angeles, As I noticed last eve.

We arrived at dawn in a fog, yet all felt an animation. Every visitor has been touched by this irrepressible spirit—the spirit of joyous abandon that transformed Tetrazzini into a street singer and Kubelik into a wandering troubador. You cannot explain. It is merely one of those things.

The city is enthroned in glamorous hills—crazy and cock-eyed in their confusion. Over the bay sea gulls were wheeling about and screaming a noisy welcome, and myriad illuminated ferryboats rippled the waters with yellow blobs of fire. Here once nestled a sleepy Spanish pueblo. Then came the gold flecked days of the Argonauts. And now look!

Boys and girls, this is a city—a city with more of the dash of Paris than any other in America. There is a jealousy between San Francisco and Los Angeles, but the healthy vigilance of civic pride, and back of the bickerings is a mutual admiration. Each has achieved a glorious destiny. So let 'em spat.

The weather here is cooler and —with a nice big hug for the Chamber of Commerce—muggier. But there is plenty of sunshine along with its sudden mid afternoon chill. San Francisco, I should say, is a trifle more aloof to the stranger. But its vivacity is more pronounced than that of Los Angeles.

Passing through the Ferry Building, one comes upon the serge of Market street and its jangle. All streets criss-cross this main artery that zig-zags diagonally through town. Take a walk and try to keep off Market street, then, using one side of the paper, send me your answer in block letters. The electric radiance at night is doggy.

One of the pivotal points down town is Lotta's Fountain, a gift to the city by Lotta Crabtree, a beloved stage idol at whose feet worshipful miners tossed golden nuggets in days agone. San Francisco speaks in a medley of alien tongues and, pardon another cartwheel, is strikingly and gloriously cosmopolitan.

* * *

San Francisco's water front inspired Jack London to answer the call of the sea and furnished high lights for the excellent literature of Frank Norris. Every variety of craft is harbored here, from a Chinese junk to an enormous Pacific liner. Drawn from all far-flung ports of the compass are Portuguese, Cornishmen, Chinese, South Sea Islanders, Singalese—brawny seamen with hair on their chests who go around the Horn on windjammers and down to the sea in ships. Embarcadero piers are piled with tea, rice, silk, hemp and tobacco, creating that aura of adventure that grips us all. San Francisco is the key port of the Pacific and its water front is a monument to its eternal debt to the sea. And I wish I could tell you what a parrot perched on a peg-legged seaman's shoulder called me, and I would if I didn't happen to be so poison nice.

It stirs the imagination to think of this city in cradle days as a red-shirted mining camp, but it is staggering to realize its Phoenix-like rise from the ashes of its devastating fire to present opulence. The city today really dates back to reconstruction following 1906. What an achievement!

San Francisco is so rich in literary lore that most of us measly little chicken-breasted scribblers stand humbled before it. It was here such illustrious as the following started: Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Edwin Markham, Joaquin Miller, Jack London, Gertrude Atherton, Frank, Charles and Kathleen Norris, Will and Wallace Irwin, Ambrose Bierce, George Sterling, Peter B. Kyne, R. L. Stevenson, Herman Whitaker and Gelett Burgess.

Hotel bell hops are nearly all middle-aged men. Many are those who have grown gray "hopping bells" from coast to coast. "We wind up here," said one, "and never leave."

The climate has a wallop. In the chill of an early morning you have an urge to kick off the blankets and tip over a mountain. Ladies, as well as geraniums, grow tall and handsome. And the teetering gentleman who remarked as I registered at an hotel, "Give the Duke and his white spats a nice roomy room," doesn't realize how narrowly he escaped a sock on the jaw.

Bootlegging
By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Bootlegging is a term that is applied to traffic in any illicit material. The name is most usually used in connection with the unlawful sale of liquor since the Eighteenth Amendment. It was a large and flourishing business, however, long before the prohibition of alcoholic liquors, and it is still considerable.

There are certain things that people want to do that are injurious to their health and dangerous to society. Appealing to personal liberty they claim they have a perfect right to do these things. There is no such thing as absolute personal liberty in orderly society. Civilization rests upon the fact that we forego certain personal liberties for the common good.

People may think that they have a perfect right to run lotteries, but the government properly prohibits them from doing this because the net result of a lottery is loss and misery. So people think they have a right to use opium, heroin and cocain, if they so desire, and it is nobody's business. But enlightened government sees that the effect of procuring these drugs and using them freely is deplorable in the extreme.

There is an annual crop of about 16,000 tons of opium alone while only about 350 tons are needed for medical and scientific purposes.

Many attempts have been made to curb the nefarious traffic, but the greed of those who make tremendous profits in it is stronger than government.

China delivered an edict in 1906 declaring the extermination of the poppy, from which opium is produced, within 10 years. The republic of China in 1918 made a $36,000,000 bonfire of all the opium it could get hold of, but the greed of man was too strong. Opium paid too much taxes for a government to be honest. There was too much money to be made in opium smuggling.

The United States withdrew from the last international conference at Genoa because there was no world agreement on limiting the traffic of narcotic drugs.

Political, social and business interests would be hurt by stopping the growth of the poppy.

Hence, says a recent writer, "the poppy blooms freely and even increases in its domain, especially in China, Turkey, Persia and India; and the coca plant, originally a native of South America, is spreading its roots in the soil of Ceylon, Java and Japan. Germany, Switzerland, France and other countries are busy turning out tons of derivatives."

So long as a business is profitable some men will pursue it utterly regardless of human wreckage.

OH, THESE WOMEN!
By LEOLA ALLARD

COLONIAL fashions with long skirts are coming back. What a relief that is going to be to the best fellers of some of these knock-kneed, bow-legged, pigeon-toed, piano-legged girls, who just WOULD be stylish!

But how is the modern girl going to act in a Colonial dress, with long skirts ruffled with 50 yards of lace, long gloves and a demure little hat?

And won't it be funny to hear a girl dressed that way saying: "For the love of Pete, who's going to that whoopee party of Mazie's tomorrow night? I hope her gin is the goods. I almost parked the cookies at my last gin party."

Shades of George Washington!

The Life Extension Society publishes the warning: "Wear light, loose and porous clothing."

Read that to the family, girls, and mebbe papa won't spank.

A spinster lady who taught kindergarten and primary schools for 35 years has quit. It isn't recorded whether or not the western village where she lives gave her anything BUT the gate. She probably feels that it is reward enough to have dried more baby tears, and eased more aching little hearts than any mother in the country.

A lady in Arkansas shot at her husband three times at close range, but didn't hit him.

It's just as well to keep them on their toes. She didn't try to kill him. Just showing him a few things.

Now, in Chicago, not only would she have hit him each time, but she would have had bad intentions. The fact that she did it in Chicago would have settled the question in a world court.

Why is she four times divorced? What kind of a wife is she?

She's this kind: As soon as she marries she begins to wonder what kind of a husband the other suitor would have made. Interest and curiosity that makes some women interesting also makes them this way. Once married they congeal, and the Krassin couldn't break the ice. The pity is they can't help it. (This is a choice bit in your matrimonial education.)

The woman who first haunts her man, then hounds him, then refuses to let him get away till she has nailed her colors to the mast, makes a be-ootiful wife! Stays put and is always at home, and saves money and keeps a perfect house, and always has your buttons sewed on, and reminds you of anything you forget, and cooks what you like and—bores you to distraction!

Oh, you are entirely welcome.
